WOLTER'S STORY OF GIRL'S DEATH

ACCUSED SLAYER OF RUTH WHEELER GIVEN A HEARING

Intimates That Another Man Killed Girl and Burned Body—Testimony for the Defence Closed.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Albert Wolter, the youth of nineteen accused of atrociously murdering fifteen-year-old Ruth Wheeler, today took the stand in his own behalf and laid the crime to a mysterious man hitherto unmentioned. The prisoner, while evading a direct declaration to that effect, implied that "Fred Ahner" was the murderer. This turn came as a surprise, as it had been announced that Wolter's sole defence would be an alibi.

WOLTER LAYS GUILT UPON ANOTHER MAN.

Denying that he had ever seen the little victim, Wolter declared that he and Ahner had contemplated opening a shorthand school and that Ahner had ordered him to write the name of Ruth Wheeler in the notebook, in which were found the names of many other girls. Wolter swore that on March 24, the day of the tragedy, he was at his home from 8:30 a. m.

He testified that he was born in Essen, Germany, and had been in America three years. With no indication of emotion he told of his meeting with Kate Mueller and their subsequent relations. Then the questions got down to the day of the murder, and Wolter began the story of his alibi.

"I left the house at 8:30 in the morning," he said, "and went to the Hundred and Twenty-eighth street and Third avenue, where I bought some paint. Then I went to the bakery where Kate worked for lunch and after that to Central park. I returned home about 3 o'clock and later went to a barber shop."

He testified that the Mueller girl returned home about 7:30, and that Pearl Wheeler arrived an hour later in search of Ruth.

The witness denied Miss Wheeler's charge that he insulted her.

Attorney Scott did not seem perturbed by the discrepancy between the testimony of Miss Gibbs and Wolter. The woman said she did not go out Thursday as it was raining. Wolter said he sat in the park several hours.

Sometimes, he said, he remained home, reading, copying newspaper articles to learn English, and looking over advertisements.

"At what time did you get up?"

"At 6:30 or 7."

"Then what did you do?"

"I answered some advertisements about twelve, I think."

He could remember none of the names.

The defence scored heavily when its first witness, Kate Mueller, sister of Katherine Gibbs, was lived in the house at No. 224

RED SOX LEADER SIGNS UP FOR THREE YEARS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Harry Lord, the third-baseman and captain of the Red Sox, strolled into the club's downtown office this forenoon, went to the office force, there being no practice up at the grounds. He started a fanning bee with President John I. Taylor and the first thing he knew Captain Harry had affixed his signature, which is the baseball reporter's way of saying "signed," to a three-year contract.

Neither Lord nor John I. had anything of the kind in mind when they began talking, but the conversation drifted around that way and the first thing they knew they had agreed on terms for a period of three years. It was but the work of a minute to fill out the document and sign it. The new contract takes the place of the one Lord signed early this year which only covered the present season.

Both Mr. Taylor and the Red Sox captain expressed satisfaction over the transaction Then they shook hands and the player went up to the old ball yard to prepare for the game.

Mr. Taylor also announced that he has signed up Tris Speaker, his great centre fielder to a two-year contract, which came to an agreement last week in New York.

BARBER'S HEATER WRECKS BUILDING

When the water all boiled out of the hot water heater in the barber shop of John F. Lacey at No. 5 Irving street, Malden, the steam generated blew out the front of the building. The interior of the shop was wrecked also. The glass in the windows of a grocery store and an undertaking parlor were shattered. A man who was passing was cut by the flying splinters of glass and his clothes were ruined.

CITIES FIGHT PLAN TO WIDEN MYSTIC DRAW

Opposition from the cities of Boston and Chelsea, in the name of the corporation counsel, developed at the hearing given this noon in room 142 of the Federal building, to the application of Colonel Alexander Burr of the War Department, on the proposal to widen the draw and otherwise alter the bridge over the Mystic River connecting Boston with Chelsea. The plans call for widening the present sixty-foot draw to 125 feet.

Corporation Counsel Thomas M. Babson of this city said the new bridge would cost $1,700,000. He opposed the plan as the cost should not be saddled on the cities of Boston and Chelsea. He believed the Boston Elevated and the Boston & Northern Railway Companies should be made to bear a goodly proportion of the cost. Chairman William E. Mechtnork of the Chelsea Board of Control and City Solicitor James of Chelsea agreed with Babson.

Joseph Brackett, chief engineer of the Metropolitan Water Board, said the widening would be worth small benefit or expense in changing the present water fun nel and offered no objection.

Samuel L. Pillsbury, representing the Boston & Northern, opposed the petition. He declared the company could not be legally held responsible for any of the cost of rebuilding the bridge.

Among those who favored the petition were Arthur Balmstrup, counsel for the petitioners, General Manager Plan of the New England Coal and Coke Company and Captains Abbott and Grogsted of the coliers Everett and Chelsea. The Boston Elevated was not represented at the hearing.

WORLD-WIDE GRIEF FOR MARK TWAIN

DANBURY, Ct., April 22.—The sorrow of the entire world over the death of Mark Twain was shown to-day when messages began to arrive in a steady stream at the humorist's home. From the capitals of the world and from the most out-of-the-way places the telegrams came, from persons whose names are famous over two continents and from scores almost unknown.

The humorist's friends are planning for a great memorial meeting to be held within the next few days. Although no definite preparations had been made, it was declared to-day by those interested in the project that there was little doubt of its being held.

Grief is perhaps keenest in Danbury, Redding and Bethel. The people in these Connecticut places knew Samuel L. Clemens as did few others; they knew his simplicity and his lofty and his generosity.

Mark Twain, beloved the world over because he made it laugh, died of a broken heart. He passed away without pain in his country home, Stormfield, back in the wild Canaanack hills. For five hours he had been unconscious and the end was almost imperceptible. It was simply a cessation of pulse and respiration.

At his bedside were his only living child, Clara, who is the wife of Ossip Gabrilowitsch, the Russian pianist; Albert Bigelow Paine, his secretary and literary executor, who was almost a son to him; Drs. Ed-

"MARK TWAIN GAVE JOY TO MILLIONS"

President Taft to-day wrote the following comment on Mark Twain:

"Mark Twain gave pleasure . . . real intellectual enjoyment—to millions, and his works will continue to give such pleasures to millions yet to come. He never wrote a line that a father could not read to a daughter. His humor was American, but he was nearly as much appreciated by Englishmen and people of other countries as by his own countrymen. He has made an enduring part of American literature."

NATIONAL LEAGUE GROUNDS, Philadelphia, April 22.—The Boston Doves, headed by Manager Fred Lake, came to town to-day and opened a series with the Phillies. After arrangements seedes with the Giants at Boston and New York the Doves figured the Phillies would be soft every though they were leading the National League race for the moment.

Lake's men were in grand shape for the battles and the hustling manager announced that his pitchers were working fine. He told the reporters that he had selected Kirk White to start things to-day, but might shift his pitching after the warm up process. Manager Moran of the Phillies had half a dozen good ones ready to oppose the Doves in the box.

The weather was pleasant and there was a good-size crowd out to witness the warfare.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, April 22.—It was a dismal day to welcome Connie Mack's great team on their first appearance here this season. The old-time rivals of the Red Sox were entitled to fine sunshine and dry grounds, but they got neither, thanks to the cut-ups of the weather man.

Had the day been more fair there would have been thousands to welcome the visiting aggregation of baseball stars. The Mackmen are great favorites in Boston. The fans recognize Connie Mack as one of the greatest baseball generals in the business and there is always something doing when his team clashes with the Speed Boys.

Manager Donovan flickered Eddie Cicotte for the job of holding the heavy-hitting Athletics down to cases. The knuckle ball artist has shown fine form in the games he has pitched this year and the men behind him had every confidence that he would come out on top in his argument with the opposing pitcher. Mack had Eddie Plank, Jimmy Dygert, Krause and several others he thought would be able to trim the Bostons.

DRAPER PLEADS FOR MELLEN RELIEF

Remarkable Message Sent to Legislature in Behalf of the New Haven Railroad's Holding Company Securities.

In one of the most sensational messages ever sent to the Massachusetts Legislature, Governor Draper to-day threw up his hands on the proposal to make the bonds of the Boston Railroad Holding Company attractive for investment and begs that the Holding Company be allowed at least to issue prefered stock or similar securities.

The Governor's action saved the day for the New Haven. If the message had not come, the New Haven situation would be left high in the air. With the Boston & Maine railroad on its hands, with an opportunity to get the money of Massachusetts savings banks through the savings bank bill, with the Holding Company bonds subject to taxation, the New Haven would have been a sorry spectacle.

Governor Was In Bad Position.

The Governor's action to-day followed closely an opinion from Attorney-General Dana Malone that the New Haven bill, filed through Senator Turtle, to exempt the Holding Company bonds from taxation, was unconstitutional and the subsequent refusal of the House to admit the Turtle bill. Mr. Draper's inaugural recommendation that the bonds of the Holding Company be made legal investments for Massachusetts savings banks had already been so blocked to prevent it becoming before committees that both the oGvernor and the House despaired of seeing it enacted into law.

Following is his message:

"To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives:

"In my inaugural address to the Legislature I recommended that bonds of the Boston Railroad Holding Company be made a legal investment for Massachusetts savings banks.

"I stated at that time that I believed the Boston Railroad Holding Company would be a great benefit to the railroad situation in Massachusetts and New England, and I further stated that 'Massachusetts cannot expect great improvements in railroad properties unless she is willing to help in proper ways those who are willing to bring money into such developments.' I understand and believe that important and extensive improvements are very soon to be undertaken on these properties, and I think it is in the interest of all our citizens that those making thes elarge expenditures for such improvements should be encouraged to do so.

Believes in His Position.

"I feel confident that the statements made by me at that time were correct, and I sincerely hope that the General Court will pass some legislation to bring about these results.

"I understand that many members of the Legislature do not approve of my recommendation that these bonds be made a savings bank investment. I have no pride of opinion in this matter, and if your honorable bodies believe this is not wise I have nothing further to urge in that line at this time.

"I do, however, believe that something should be done to help the railroad situation and to aid that some legislation should be passed to enable the Boston Railroad Holding Company to issue securities, like preferred stock, the interest of any such investment on which would be free from double taxation. This would facilitate the bringing out of the improvements desired and would give the people a good investment.

"I therefore recommend that legislation be passed to accomplish as near the purposes in which I have referred—i. e., the improvement of the New Haven Railroad, may be more promptly carried out and the interests of all the people thereby promoted.

(Signed) "EBEN S. DRAPER."

Excitement at State House.

The Governor's action forces the Legislature to consider means for helping the New Haven Railroad to develop its Boston & Maine holdings. The excitement in to-day's message, to allow the Holding Company to issue preferred stock, is not lessened down. If it is turned down the New Haven situation will return to the air.

The Attorney General's opinion that the Turtle bill is unconstitutional, the recommendation of the House Committee on Rules that the Turtle bill be not admitted, the refusal of the House to admit the bill, although the Senate has already ad-

M'CARTHY NAMED BY THE MAYOR

Mayor Fitzgerald to-day sent the appointment of Jeremiah J. McCarthy as Fire Commissioner of Boston to City Clerk Priest and to the Civil Service Commissioners for confirmation.

"This appointment," said the Mayor, will probably not meet with the approval of the Republican machine, but then, that machine is not running City Hall.

"I feel that Mr. McCarthy has the complete confidence of the business world. He was endorsed for collector of the port by men who represented $50,000,000. He has had experience that will make him an ideal man for the place."

The appointment came as a surprise to McCarthy.

"I was a strong supporter of Storrow," he said, "and everybody knows it. I have every reason to feel gratified at the appointment."

"I have held office about all my lifetime in the city, State and nation, and a peculiar thing is that I have resigned every office that I have ever held. I have been appointed to the place I'll keep up to my record in the past for resigning office. But let me out on any expression of probable policy in this event of my assuming the head of the fire department. It's something the Ate Lincoln would say: 'Don't cross a bridge until you come to it.'

"I've always been interested in fire matters. I was a volunteer fireman in the old days, served on the State Board of Fire Commissioners under Governor Brackett, and I've studied all the departments of European cities, particularly of London and Paris, and during my whole lifetime have been a close follower of everything pertaining to the department affairs.

"I've had no aspirations to become head of the Boston Fire Department. My aspirations were to become Collector of the Port of Boston, but that I couldn't reach. When I receive official notice of appointment, I'll have something definite to say."

CHELSEA GIVES 32 LIQUOR LICENSES

Fifteen additional liquor licenses were granted by the Chelsea licensing board to-day, making a total of thirty-two allowed for the year. The licenses go into effect on May 1.

WOULD SELL FRUIT FOR A MONASTERY

For the purpose of earning money with which to erect a monastery adjoining a church in Wilmington, near the Woburn line, the Very Rev. The spot to be put up on "Middle road" in lower Square, opposite the South Station, or the Lafayette Mall on the Summer Tunnel in front of the Park Street Church. The priest was referred to Commissioner O'Meara and the Street Commissioners.

HUNDREDS KILLED BY CHINESE

BANKOW, China, April 22.—Women and children are fleeing for their lives from Changsha. A number of villages near that city have been reduced to ashes by the mobs. The country is placarded with threats to kill all foreigners.

Hundreds have been killed in the rioting. This disquieting news was brought by missionary refugees who arrived here from Changsha and established missionary stations at 10 a. m. to-day. Many of them had traveled thirty miles on foot and reached the Yangtze river in rags. Their houses had been burned and they lost all of their personal effects.

The missionaries stated that gunboats in the river have their guns trained upon Changsha and its suburbs and have afforded the rioters no many foreigners. Three thousand Chinese imperial soldiers are occupying the strategic points of the capital and detachments are being hurried to the outlying districts where rioting is reported.

In one instance a technical school was set afire and thirty students were burned to death.

When vessels approached Changsha to rescue the imperiled ones, the Chinese mob satuated junks with kerosene oil from the United stations of the Standard Oil Company, and sent them afire, allowed them to float downstream in an attempt to fire the oncoming steamships.

The Telegraph wires to the westward of the disturbed districts have been cut. Many missionaries, American, French and Norwegian, remain at outlying points.

The British Consul at Changsha, who has arrived here, said to-day: "If one foreigner had been killed a massacre probably would have followed. The British consulate was burned because I employed laborers from another province in the construction of new buildings."

TOBACCO TRUST TO CUT SIZE OF PLUGS

NEW YORK, April 22.—The burden of the increase in revenue on tobacco manufactured, effective July 1, is to be shifted to the shoulder of the user by the Tobacco Trust, otherwise the American Tobacco Company. The trust cannot evade the revenue tax, but it can shorten the weight, and such is its declared intention. New York dealers have been told, as will those in every city and hamlet of the union, that on July 1 the size of every package, plug or smoke, will be reduced sufficiently to offset the new revenue. The plug will be reduced in size and there will be eight cigarettes instead of ten in packages here after turned out.

CIGARMAKERS GIVE $50 TO HOSPITAL

Accompanied by a letter wishing them "godspeed in the work the institution is doing for the poor and needy," the trustees of the Carney Hospital at South Boston to-day received a check for $50 from Cigarmakers' Union, No. 97, of this city, to "help the good work along." This union, it is stated, is a regular contributor to the Carney Hospital fund, as well as to all other charitable institutions in Boston. It spends about $17,000 a year out of its local revenue for charitable and fraternal purposes alone, while it has had only one general strike since the day it first was organized here, which was about twenty years ago.

QUINCY UNIONS SCORE BOWLES

The Quincy Central Labor Union last night adopted resolutions criticising Admiral Bowles, head of the Fore River Ship Building and Engine Company, for his stand in regard to the eight-hour law. The resolutions secured the Admiral for his attempts to secure signatures among the employes of the yard to a letter which he is sending to Senators Lodge and Crane urging them to oppose the clause in the navy appropriation bill providing that the new ships shall be built in yards where the eight-hour rule prevails.

It is said that Admiral Bowles has already secured 200 signatures. The Union is also going to send a letter to the Senators urging them to support the eight-hour clause.

WHITE CALLS DRAPER'S PLEA FOR NEW HAVEN MOST UNFORTUNATE

mitted it, and the climax of the Draper special message threw the State House into a furore of excitement.

In began shortly before noon, when Attorney-General Malone sent to the Rules Committee of the House his adverse opinion on the Turtle bill. The committee promptly voted to turn the bill down. The House, already in session, received the Committee's report, and on motion of Representative Robert M. Washburn of Worcester, refused to admit the measure by a wild chorus of "noes," the question being on rejection.

Things were up in the air for several minutes, and then came the message from the Governor. The AMERICAN stated authoritatively several weeks ago that if the House refused to admit the Turtle bill the Governor stood ready to send in a special message to help the New Haven in some way.

Norman White's Statement.

Speaker Walker promptly referred the Draper message to the Committee on Railroads, which will probably give public hearings on the message.

Just as everybody was beginning to feel that the bumps were over, Representative White of Brookline, leader with Washburn of the Beacon Hill forces who are trying to force the New Haven to repeal the laws and policies of Massachusetts, came to bat with a statement attacking the Governor's message, which follows:

"The Governor's special message is most unfortunate at this time. There is no need to again urge the General Court to come to the rescue of the New Haven with its $121,878,000 of illegal stock, as stated by the Attorney-General in his report to the Legislature, printed in 1909.

"Again the question of forfeiture of charter of the New Haven is not settled. In the same report the Attorney-General says 'It is subject to forfeiture.'

"Let the Legislature decide first whether it will legalize this illegal stock and withhold its charter to exist before issuing Holding Company securities in any form, with the New Haven endorsement or guarantee.

Reminders of the Past.

"I would state to every citizen of Massachusetts:

"1—The Legislature last year appointed a commission composed of the Bank Commissioner, the Tax Commissioner and the Railroad Commission, to go into these questions.

"2—This commission sitting jointly recommended a thorough investigation of the New Haven Railroad.

"3—The recommendation of this commission or the investigation has not been acted upon.

"4—Twice this year we have been asked by messages from the Governor to legalize the securities of this Holding Company with the New Haven guarantee.

"4—I would ask the citizens of Massachusetts what is the need of the Governor's haste with these indisputable facts staring the Governor and the State in the face.

"Are we hear to legislate in disregard to the action of last year's Legislature and the report of three of our best commissioners, in favor of a huge transportation monopoly dominated by New York financiers, established contrary to our laws and in defiance of the laws of the United States as stated by President Roosevelt and Attorney-General Bonaparte in the United States suits brought against the New Haven?"

Brayton, held down the law to the Republicans and defied the Democrats in the matter of the Senatorial succession in an interview when he said: "The logical candidate for United States Senator to succeed Senator Aldrich is a Republican of the Aldrich type," he declared. This is not the case, and his successor must be a man who will stand in the Senate for the things which Aldrich has stood for.

$75,000 SUIT BY CHENEYS

The estate of Benjamin P. Cheney filed to-day with the clerk of courts at Dedham a suit for $75,000 against the town of Dover. The action is one seeking to have the town return $58,800 paid by the estate in addition to its regular tax assessment of $2,818.48.

The sum of $58,800 was paid under protest by the estate in 1908 after the State authorities had visited the town and found enough personal property of the estate to warrant this additional tax assessment.

Cheney, who died in 1905, left $25,000,000. The executors are Benjamin P. Cheney, his son, who married Julia Arthur; Richard Olney, former Secretary of State under Cleveland, and Frederick H. Snow of Gaston, Snow & Saltonstall. That firm will press the suit.

THREE BOYS HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGE

In the Malden District Court to-day, three Everett boys, the eldest of whom was eighteen, fined Judge Fernald on charge of breaking and entering the hardware store of George H. Whiteomb in Norwood street, Everett, on February 27. The youngsters pleaded not guilty. The boys were Elwyn Woodard, sixteen, of No. 126 Lawrence street; John F. Pool, eighteen, of No. 124 High street; and Owen J. Matthews, seventeen, of No. 241 Chelsea street. The police brought in five revolvers and twenty boxes of cartridges which they declared the boys stole from the store. The cases were continued until next Wednesday for the Juvenile Court in Malden.

SHILOH HEAD COMING BACK WITH COLONY

LISBON, Me., April 22.—Declaring that with his entire Jerusalem colony, he is coming to Shiloh to prepare for the coming of the world's end, the Rev. Frank W. Sandford, founder and head of the Holy Ghost Society, has announced in a letter received here that he expects to reach the hilltop early in May. Sandford called for Jerusalem several months ago, and it was understood at that time that he intended to bring back the members of the society who have been living there for the past few years.

Conditions at Shiloh are anything but prosperous, and it is believed that unless he arrives here soon the hilltop will be entirely depopulated. There is no source of revenue, and the disciples are suffering for want of food and clothing.

Only a few days ago Agent George A. Allen of Auburn, representing the County Humane Society, caused the arrest of "Moses" Charles E. Holland and Elder Whitaker for cruelty to animals. It was stated at the hearing that the barns at Shiloh were empty of hay and grain and that many of the cattle were so weak from starvation that they could not stand up in their stalls.

It is said that practically the same conditions prevail in the temple that are found on the shiloh, and that the Sandfordites are suffering with hunger.

MAYOR VETOES ORDER FOR SCHOOL TAX

Mayor Fitzgerald has vetoed the recent order of the school committee providing for the appropriation of $529,557 from the tax levy of this year for land and buildings for schools, which, if allowed to stand, would raise the tax rate about 40 cents on every $1,000.

AMERICAN SINGER FINED IN LIBEL SUIT

BERLIN, April 22.—Miss Edith Walker, the American soprano must pay a fine of $25 or serve ten days' detention in a libel action brought by Hermann Gura, a manager, in connection with the part of Amneris in "Aida." Herr Gura thought her reading unsatisfactory. Just before the curtain went up Miss Walker said: "That's frightful nonsense. I'm not going to take part in such goings on." Herr Gura felt his honor tampered with by her hasty words. The judges based their decision on the assumption that it was the defendant's object to expose the manager to ridicule.

DEALERS HOPE TO SIDETRACK MILK FAMINE

The farmers who produce milk in the New England States and in Eastern New York declare that they will not be able to continue to supply Boston unless they receive Winter prices through the Summer. Their argument is that the increased price of feed and the additional care required for the production of milk justify them in their demand.

The milk contractors of Boston say, however, that they do not believe that the farmers will carry out their threat to boycott the city in milk. There may be some shortage, but it is believed that this will not be large enough to cause Boston milk during the Summer.

C. H. Hood of Hood & Sons, said to-day that they did not anticipate that there would be any serious shortage on May 1, as is threatened. He said that the contractors had listened to the demands made by the producers' association for an increased price and had refused it. He added:

"We hardly think that the reliable and conservative producers will insist on Cobb' demands. Some of them may hold back enough milk to make a shortage, but we feel that some sort of a compromise will be reached, the matter amicably straightened out. Butter and cheese is lower in the Summer, and why not milk?"

J. K. Whiting, manager of E. Brigham Company, said: "We don't anticipate any serious shortage of milk this Summer. Some of the producers may hold back enough milk to cause a slight shortage, in the effort to force us to continue the present Winter prices throughout the Summer months, but I think it will come out all right."

A CHEMIST'S DISCOVERY

New Remedy for Eczema and Other Skin Troubles.

The most remarkable feature about Cadum, the new remedy for skin diseases, is that its beneficial action is seen in every case where it is applied. Not a single instance has been found where it failed to allay the terrible itching of eczema at once. People who have been afflicted with eczema for years and have tried everything without being relieved should take fresh courage, for the new remedy Cadum is different from anything else. It is the discovery of a chemist, who felt for years that the world needed a cure for eczema and other skin troubles, and as a result of his studies and experiments Cadum was the outcome. While possessing such remarkable powers in overcoming different forms of skin troubles, Cadum contains no dangerous ingredients. When applied over unsightly sores on the face and hands, it forms a thin, almost invisible coating, so that the disease is covered up while the healing process is going on. The 10c. size is intended for trial purposes by those who wish to test its wonderful virtues in skin troubles such as hives, pimples, blotches, tetter, itch, acne, herpes, scaly skin, rash, psoriasis, ringworm, chafing, eruptions, sores, scabs, itching piles, scurvy, etc. Large boxes 25c. at all druggists.

Give Your Stomach A Chance

To Furnish the System the Necessary Fluids to Drive Dyspepsia from the Stomach.

A Trial Package Free.

You should get to your stomach the chemicals it needs to restore tone, vigor and health to the gastric fluids.

Food contains all these ingredients necessary, and when the stomach is in a normal condition it separates these ingredients as it should and manufactures from them the digestive agents, but when it is sick and filled with acids and all like that irritate everything they come in contact with, it cannot do the food as it should and consequently does not make known juices correctly.

Science has proven that what is most necessary to the stomach to produce the correct gastric fluids and tonic of digestion is naturally pleasant drug.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are so made as to give the stomach the highest chemical properties to aid digestion. These tablets are made up from pure fruit and vegetable essences, and this is the formula: Hydrastis, Golden Seal, Lactose, Nux, Asaphe, Pepsin (the highest digestive known), and Jamaica Ginger. Its preparation peculiarly preserves the full strength of these ingredients, so that they go into the stomach strong and capable of digesting food of any character. Fifty thousand physicians use and prescribe them. Ask your doctor his opinion of the formula above. Every druggist sells them, price 50 cents per box, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 170 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

GUILD FIGHTS MONOPOLY IN HARBOR PLAN

A sharp, while good-natured, conflict of opinion was developed at the Chamber of Commerce meeting called to discuss the proposed East Boston harbor improvements, between ex-Governor Curtis Guild and Henry M. Whitney. Colonel Guild maintained that the proper owner of the land and wharfs should be the Commonwealth, rather than a private company, as at present ownership, in his opinion, would be a step toward the acquisition of the property by the "transportation monopoly."

Mr. Whitney argued that the Commonwealth had already had sufficient time to take action toward providing the needed dock room, and that as there seemed no likelihood of such action toward that on account of the finances of the State, private enterprise should be permitted to make the development.

The result of the discussion, which occupied considerable time, was the approval of the so-called Wadsworth Harbor line. This makes allowance for the construction of new piers for transatlantic steamships, with a marginal railroad along the shore ends of the piers.

Colonel Guild's views prevailed to the extent that the matter of endorsing the method of the acquiring of the land and the construction of the piers was referred back to the board of trustees for a further study. Mr. Whitney, opposing, declared himself unalterably against the whole plan, to be maintained that private capital would now be given the right to proceed toward the accomplishment of the project.

AUTO WRECKED AS IT HITS STEAM ROLLER

A light automobile runabout cannot buck a steam roller successfully. This fact was demonstrated on the Revere Beach parkway near Broadway Revere, early today. A runabout in charge of a man giving the name of D. X. Crocker, of Roxbury, who said he was not the owner of the car, was being driven backward Revere Crocker had a man with him. The steering gear broke the runabout swerved into a steam roller standing at the side of the road. The runabout crumpled up the roller, and Crocker and his companion were pitched out but escaped unhurt. The Metropolitan police took charge of the damaged car, whose number is 12,305.

THAYER SEES G.O.P. BEATEN IN BAY STATE

WASHINGTON, April 22.—If the Democratic party nominates one of its strongest men for Governor this year, we will carry the State just as sure as the sun sets on election day," said ex-Representative John R. Thayer of Worcester, who is here on his annual visit.

Mr. Thayer is renewing old acquaintances at the capitol and making new ones. He called on President Taft, who is an old friend, both being Yale men.

He lunched with Representative Kelley in the House restaurant and has been talking politics with all the Massachusetts Democrats and others.

"I believe the party is in better shape than at any time since 1892," said Mr. Thayer. "On the other hand, the Republicans are badly divided. There is no question that Representative Foss could be elected Governor. So could any one of several other strong men, but they may not be willing to run.

Mr. Thayer has been pronhinently mentioned for the gubernatorial nomination on more than one occasion, but his friends say he does not want the honor. When asked about the strength of Mr. Vahey as a possible gubernatorial nominee, Mr. Thayer said:

"I am not thinking about that until the Fall. Before that I decide until then whether I will run for Congress again. I have been urged to do so by many prominent Democratic here and at home. I have also had designs Representative Weeburn, although I would take no personal pleasure in doing so, for his family and mine are good friends. They all attend the same church.

"We ought to carry the Worcester district regardless of whether I am a candidate. We should also carry the third regular Democratic District and the Fourteenth District, now represented by Mr. Foss. I believe that we can elect Democrats to succeed Representatives Anderson Tirrell or both if we nominate the right men like Mr. Pope of Leominster, against Mr. Tirrell, for instance."

4 KILLED IN WRECK ON THE "BIG FOUR"

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 22.—Four persons were killed and nine injured when a westbound passenger train on the Big Four railroad ran into an open switch at Sandford, Ind., today. Two of the killed were trainmen.

LYNN TRUNK SLAYER IS IN SALEM JAIL

Vahan Nalbandian, accused of the murder of Minas K. Monjian, who was extradited from Bulgaria and completed the 15,000-mile journey from that country with two Lynn detectives last night, was taken before Judge Morton of the Superior Court at Salem to-day, where his commitment papers were signed. Nalbandian can now be legally confined in the Salem jail.

He was indicted for murder while a fugitive. Therefore when he returned he was brought to Lynn. Commitment papers were necessary before he could become an inmate of the Salem jail.

Nalbandian spent a peaceful night in a police cell at Lynn. He seemed little concerned that he was charged with murder. He admits that he shot Monjian, but declares the shooting was an accident.

The Lynn police still insist, however, that Nalbandian killed his friend for the large sum of money that the latter was known to possess. Chief Burke declined today that the indictment against the prisoner would not be changed. "It was not an accident as Nalbandian says," declared the chief. "The significant thing about it is that the money is missing, and that while only one shot was fired, that pierced the heart of Monjian."

The Lynn detectives who brought Nalbandian to this country, Inspectors Shaw H. Burrkee and Arthur G. Wells, are loud in their praises of the Bulgarian officials. When they left Sofia they started across the Bulgarian frontier into Roumania. The Roumanian officials would not permit their passage. They were obliged to retrace their steps to Sofia, where they were fixed up with papers which allowed them to pass through Servia.

POLICEMEN CHARGED WITH LEAVING POST

Complaints against four patrolmen attached to the Joy street police station, charging them with leaving their posts to lunch at the kitchen of the Hotel Bellevue, has been filed at Police Headquarters. The names of the accused men will not be revealed until they are placed on trial. It is said that their offense is along identical lines with that of two policemen whom Commissioner O'Meara dismissed last week.

ROOSEVELT BOWS AT TOMB OF NAPOLEON

PARIS, April 22.—An incident no less impressive to admirers of Theodore Roosevelt than his visit to the pyramids of Egypt marked his program to-day. Theodore Roosevelt stood before the tomb of Napoleon. It was almost the first of Paris' sights that attracted the former President. He had had no previous opportunity to visit the historic mausoleum.

The Hotel des Invalides, about the third or building which dates from 1670, the asylum for decrepit and crippled veterans, received an escort of honor through which Mr. Roosevelt was conducted to the sombre sepulcher in which lies the tomb of the conqueror of Europe.

Before the sarcophagus Mr. Roosevelt stood with bowed head. Then with a few words he passed out into the open.

The sight-seeing tour took Mr. Roosevelt through many parts of the city which he last visited nearly a quarter of a century ago. At every stage of the trip he was recognized by the public and cheered. The former President remarked upon the great number of American flags and tri-colored bunting.

The real event of to-day's program was the reception and dinner for the Roosevelts by President Fallieres at the Elysee Palace. Some of the most famous operatic stars of Europe had been engaged for the reception, to which were invited the leading men in political and official world, the members of the diplomatic corps and prominent financiers and merchants. Mme. Fallieres and Mrs. Roosevelt both being present.

Mr. Roosevelt will have an opportunity to get into touch with the intellectual element of Paris later. The American colony had the opportunity of meeting the Roosevelts this afternoon at the American reception given by Ambassador Bacon at the embassy.

"DAKOTA DAN," BETTER, READY FOR NEW FIGHT

"Dakota Dan," or claimant No. 1 in the famous Russell case, is feeling better to-day than at any time since Judge Lawton handed down the adverse decision which shattered the nerves of the Dakota ranchman.

Senator Leslie A. Simpson of North Dakota, his counsel, who returned Wednesday from a trip to New York state said to-day that he had just come from long conference with his client at a sanitarium in Lexington.

"Dakota Dan," said Senator Simpson "feels better now than he has since the decision against his case. I saw him last night at Lexington and conferred with him up to midnight.

"I can now account for every year of Dan's absence from Melrose. Some of the witnesses who have been unearthed in New York State will greatly aid me in establishing my client's identity as the real Daniel Blake Russell.

"I am ready to begin on our new case to-morrow or any time that the court indicates."

"Fresno Dan," claimant No. 2 to the Russell fortune, was last night received at the Russell house in Melrose as the long lost Daniel Blake Russell. Henceforth he will enjoy half of the great fortune that "Dakota Dan" fought for for weeks and weeks. From now on all mail for claimant No. 2 should be addressed to Daniel Blake Russell, Russell street, Melrose.

No action has been taken yet toward the division of the property. Ferdinand B. Almy and William C. Russell, the executors of the estate, have suffered themselves as to the identity of "Fresno Dan," and from now on, so far as they are concerned, he is Daniel Blake Russell.

"LARRY" SULLIVAN HONORED BY ELKS

Three hundred members of Boston Lodge of Elks last night gave a banquet in honor of Past Exalted Ruler Lawrence H. Sullivan at the new Elks' Home in Somerset street. Mr. Sullivan was also presented with a magnificent diamond ring. The affair was largely a testimonial in recognizance of the work done by Mr. Sullivan in connection with the purchase and remodeling of the Jacob Sleeper Hall. William A. Murphy, Governor Draper's private secretary, spoke for the Governor, who could not be present. The Elks' 11 o'clock toast, "Our Absent Brothers," was given by Past Exalted Ruler Charles A. Snyder, Street Commissioner James A. Gallivan was toastmaster. Exalted Ruler Thomas H. Lovell presented the ring to Mr. Sullivan, whose response was happy. John A. Smith, chairman of the Finance Committee; Julius Auerbach, former Representative Walter A. Webster, Daniel J. Moynihan, Jr., Martin P. Higgins and John R. Murphy were the other speakers.

JUDGE AIDS WOMAN WITH BANK ACCOUNT

PROVIDENCE, April 22—A judge and other court officials here to-day chipped in and contributed fifty cents towards paying the fine imposed upon Mrs. Caroline Appel, convicted of shoplifting. The woman was fined $10 and costs, which amounted to $20 more. She had only $10.50, and this excited the sympathy of the court. Judge Gotham, who imposed the fine, contributed five cents. Assistant City Solicitor H. H. Cram ten cents and Deputy Chief Murray fifteen cents. After the woman had paid, Inspector Horton says she went to a bank where she had $80 on deposit, and drew some money.

EX-MAYOR IS MISSING.

NOW, SMILE AND LOOK PLEASANT, PLEASE, MR. COMET

WATCH FOR A "FUZZY STAR"

If you want to see the Halley comet look for a fuzzy star with a tail. That is the description given to it to-day by Professor O. C. Wendell of Harvard observatory.

Because of the fog and clouds the Harvard observers were unable to find the comet to-day although they were on the outlook with their photographic apparatus ready.

They will be on guard for it to-morrow morning at a few minutes after 3 o'clock. Many amateur astronomers have begun to search the heavens for the comet already, although it will be millions of miles nearer the earth on May 18. Most of the amateurs rely also on Professor Wendell's aid, because they are looking for too much of a phenomenon.

MAYOR FITZGERALD LEADS GRAND MARCH

The festival of Irish music and "college ball" of the Young Men's Catholic Association took place last night in the grand hall of Mechanics building, with an attendance of between 2,500 and 3,000 persons. The spacious hall was decorated in red, white and blue, with intertwined gold and green. A chorus of 400 directed by John A. O'Shea and accompanied by a large orchestra furnished the music. The concert program opened with "Salute to Erin" by the orchestra, and then the chorus sang "Let Erin Remember," "Killarney," "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls," "'Tis the Harp in the Air" and other good numbers. Mayor Fitzgerald and Mrs. T. J. Brimmo led the grand march.

MOTHERS MEET AT WORCESTER TO STUDY CHILD

WORCESTER, April 22.—That the welfare of the race depends upon the development of the child will be the salient interest to the addresses of prominent speakers, who speak at a mass meeting of parents and teachers at the Parliament tonight.

The meeting which is expected to be a record breaker is held under the auspices of the annual Congress of Mothers, the Parent-Teacher Associations.

Men and women from all sections of the city, who are interested in the question of the child and its welfare, are invited.

President G. Stanley Hall of Clark University is the principal speaker. He will talk on his topic "Child Study," the Basis of Child Welfare.

The meeting in this city has a twofold purpose—to promote co-operation of the home and school in the welfare of the child, and to organize a State branch of the National Congress of Mothers.

To Better Child Life.

It is planned to make an active campaign in this State in the interest of the child. Plans will be perfected to-night for other meetings in various sections of the State.

Since its organization the National Congress of Mothers has done excellent work, a arousing public interest in the welfare of the young boy and girl.

Believing that the home is the basis of civic, social and moral uplift, and that child study by parents is absolutely essential to child welfare, the association has co-operated with the Parent-Teacher Associations in calling to the minds of parents the simple measures that insure the best development of the children of the land.

All of the speakers to-night will preach the doctrine that the preservation of child mortality and of disease and crime can only be brought about through education of parents as to child development.

List of Speakers.

To-night's meeting opens at 8 o'clock, and it is expected that several hundred men and women will be present. Fitz Standish, the Boy Scout and the Warren are both crowded with guests, down here for the meeting.

The speakers at the opening session and the subjects they talk on are as follows:

Dr. G. Stanley Hall, President Clark University, "Child Study, the Basis of Child Welfare."

Mrs. Frederick Schoff, President National Congress of Mothers, "The Province of the Mother."

Mrs. Walter LeRoy Smith, State Organizer, Parent-Teacher Associations, "In Massachusetts."

Mrs. Edward Park, President Child Nature Club of Wollaston, "Study Outlines for Parents."

To-morrow morning the delegates will visit the library of Clark University, which contains the largest collection of books on childhood in America. This will be followed by another short meeting, at which addresses will be made by Mrs. David O. Means, Vice President National Congress of Mothers; Horace L. Hilton, Superintendent of Schools, Hyde Park; Mrs. Earl William Smith, Supervisor of Primary Grades, Lynn; Mrs. Mary H. Barker, Supervisor of Kindergartens, Worcester, and Edson L. Wood, Superintendent of Schools, Gardner.

Following the organization of a State branch to-morrow morning, State officers will be elected. There is no pre-arranged slate.

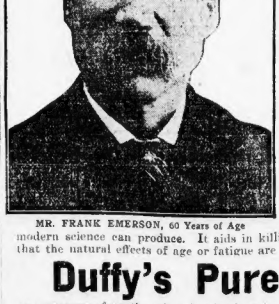
Restful Sleep Restored



MR. FRANK EMERSON, 60 Years of Age

Weight Increased 30 Pounds.

When he was all run down and his weight had decreased over thirty pounds, Mr. Emerson took Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. It restored his health and rebuilt his system so he has regained all the lost ground. He cannot give enough praise to this great medicinal whiskey. In his recent letter he says:

"I am sixty years old, hale and hearty, and feel as though I were good for a number of years yet. For the last twenty years I have cleaned, by hand, and laid over nine thousand carpets, besides doing a great deal of other work. I can climb tall trees as well as any one.

"Two years ago, by overwork, my weight decreased from two hundred to one hundred and sixty-five pounds, and I felt all run down. I was induced to try Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and to-day I am as well as ever and weigh one hundred and ninety-five pounds. I sleep just as well as when I was a boy. All praise to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. I heartily recommend it to all that are run down."—Frank Emerson, 314 Water Street, Showhegan, Me.

There are few stimulants that are safe for those advanced in age to use, on account of their reaction. Absolute purity is the first requirement, and Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is as absolutely pure as the most modern science can produce. It aids in killing disease germs and invigorates the entire system so that the natural effects of age or fatigue are overcome.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

as a renewer of youth and tonic stimulant is one of the greatest strength-givers known to science. Its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system; is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong and vigorous. It is recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

If in need of advice, write Medical Department. The Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Rochester, New York, stating your case fully. Our doctors will send you advice free, together with a valuable illustrated medical booklet containing rare common sense rules for health which you cannot afford to be without, and some of the many thousands of gratifying letters from men and women in all walks of life, both old and young, who have been cured and benefited by the use of this great medicine. Sold IN SEALED BOTTLES ONLY by druggists, grocers and dealers, or shipped direct. $1.00 per large bottle.

SCRATCHED SO SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

Child of Two had Masses of Eczema Over Face, Head and Body—They Took Her to the Best Doctors and Tried Salves and Medicines in Vain—Suffered for Five Years.

SOON RELIEVED AND CURED BY CUTICURA

"I write to tell you how thankful I am for the wonderful Cuticura Remedies. My little niece had eczema for five years and when her mother died I took care of the child. It was all over her face and body, also on her head. She scratched so that she could not sleep nights. I used Cuticura Soap to wash her with and then applied Cuticura Ointment. I did not use quite half the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, together with Cuticura Resolvent, when she began to improve. She changes and they cured her nicely. Now she is eleven years old and has never been bothered with eczema since. My friends think it is just great the way the baby was cured by Cuticura. I send you a picture taken when she was about eighteen months old.

"She was taken with the eczema when two years old. She was covered with big sores and her mother had all the best doctors and tried all kinds of salves, and medicines without effect and if we used Cuticura Remedies."—Mrs. H. Kiernan, 663 Quincy St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 27, 1909.

For thirty years Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have afforded speedy relief to tens of thousands of skin-tortured and disfigured sufferers from eczema, rashes, itchings, irritations and chafings, from infancy to age, bringing comfort and peace to distracted households when all else failed. Guaranteed absolutely pure and may be used from the hour of birth.

Cuticura Soap (25c.), Cuticura Ointment (50c.) and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.) or in the form of Cuticura Chocolate Pills (50c. per vial of 60), the universal blood purifier, may be had of Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., 133 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.

MARK TWAIN'S CLOSING YEARS WERE MARKED BY A SERIES OF SAD EVENTS

Samuel Langhorne Clemens, America's eminent humorist, and known the world over as Mark Twain, was born in the little town of Hannibal, Mo., on November 30, 1835.

His father, John Marshall Clemens, came from an old Virginia family, and with his young wife, Jane Lampton Clemens, a descendant of the early settlers of Kentucky, he joined the sturdy band of pioneers who pushed west over the Alleghanies in the early part of the last century and settled along the banks of the Mississippi River.

In the modest environment of the then little frontier town, Hannibal, the famous author spent his boyhood days. Here he fished, hunted and played along the river banks with his sturdy companions, living a healthy, outdoor life, with undoubtedly accounted for his long life, in the face of the attacks of disease.

He attended the public school, but not because he was fond of books, for he never learned to love them, content with the rough training he received in the open, as "Huckleberry Finn" and the others of their type did "from school and books."

Began as "Printer's Devil."

His elder brother, Orion S. Clemens, was the proprietor of a printing shop in the village, and young Sam Clemens began his practical career there as a "printer's devil." In the course of a few years he learned the trade as a compositor. In 1853 he left his native town and began a wandering existence. He worked at his trade in New York and the principal cities of the Middle West.

But while he gained a vast amount of experience during his trips, which proved of the greatest value in the preparation of some of his rather unprofitable from a financial standpoint, and he was finally compelled to return to his home along the banks of the great River, in rather straitened circumstances.

The life of a steamboat pilot had always appealed to his youthful imagination, and now that he had grown to manhood he resolved to make it his ambition. He was fortunate enough to become a pupil of Horace Bixby, one of the most skilful of licensed pilots, and he was soon guiding the pilot house of a steamboat along the tortuous channel of the treacherous stream.

Although becoming an author had never entered his mind at that time, but the pilot life he followed gave him ample time to develop the difficulties encountered in navigating the great river in his "Life on the Mississippi" and other stories years later.

At the outbreak of the Civil War steamboating came to a standstill, and young Clemens enlisted in the Confederate Army. A soldier's life, however, was not to his liking and after a few weeks' service he joined his brother Orion, who had received an appointment as Secretary of the Territory of Nevada. He started as his secretary to the latter, but as his duties were almost nothing and his salary even less he spent most of his time in the mining camps. His experiences in this section are depicted in his "Roughing It" and "The Jumping Frog."

"Mark Twain" in Nevada.

In 1862 he began his first regular literary work on the staff of the Virginia City Enterprise. He wrote a column daily dealing with the politics situation in the district, but attracted little attention. These articles he signed the nom de plume "Mark Twain," which he had heard sung out on the Mississippi steamers to let the pilot know that the sounding showed two fathoms of water.

He resigned his position at Virginia City and went to California, where he worked on the Sacramento Union, but after a brief period he left the desk and went to Hawaii to write up the sugar interests. His work was very successful, and on his return to California he delivered a number of lectures which netted him considerable money.

In March of 1867 Twain published his first book, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County." The book made quite a stir in that part of the country, but only a few hundred copies were sold. It attracted the attention, however, of the editor of the Alta Californian, who sent the author out as a newspaper correspondent on a steamship excursion of southern Europe and the Orient.

His letters were published from time to time, and in 1869 the author revised them and published them in book form under the title of "The Innocents Abroad." This book made Mark Twain famous and compelled his recognition as America's foremost humorist. In the first sixteen months 70,000 volumes were sold, and many more subsequently.

In 1870 Twain married Olivia L. Langdon of this city. Twain met Olivia L. Langdon at Elmira, N. Y. They fell in love with each other and in 1870 were married. Their married life was one of perfect harmony, and four children blessed their union.

He clemens resided in Buffalo for a year after his marriage and was nominally the editor of the Buffalo Express. In 1871 he joined the literary colony in Hartford, Ct., where he lived for a great many years, and where he did the greater part of the work that has made his name immortal.

In 1872 "Roughing It" appeared, and in the same year, "The Gilded Age," written in collaboration with Charles Dudley Warner, was published. "Tom Sawyer" came in 1876 and "Huckleberry Finn" four years later. Of the stories with this latter setting "The Prince and the Pauper," "A Connecticut Yankee at the Court of King Arthur," and "Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc" appeared in 1882, 1889 and 1894 respectively. In 1893 that world's philosopher, "Pudd'nhead Wilson," made his bow.

But while the great humorist was meeting with well-deserved success from a literary standpoint, the turn of misfortune seemed to dog his very footsteps. In 1884 he conceived the idea of reaping the publisher's as well as the author's profits from some of his works. Accordingly he organized a stock company known as C. L. Webster & Co., to which he was the largest stockholder, to publish his works. He had accumulated considerable wealth and was rated as a millionaire.

More Misfortune Follows.

His financial ability, however, was none of the best, and in 1894 his entire fortune was swept away by the failure of the publishing house. Mr. Clemens was abroad at the time, and although sixty years of age he started out on a tour of the globe, delivering lectures and writing articles in order to pay the debts of the defunct firm.

He had scarcely begun his great task when Fate struck him another hard blow. This was the death of his oldest and most accomplished daughter, Miss Olivia S. Clemens, who died in August, 1896, at the age of twenty-four. Broken in spirit he continued his great task, and in two years he had paid off his debts.

It was during this dark period that the veteran humorist was reported destitute and dying in London. A public appeal was sent out through a New York paper and $3,000 was raised for him. Although pressed for funds, he still retained his dignity and refused to accept the money.

As if to sympathize with her husband's misfortunes, his wife's health began to fail, and he moved to Florence, Italy, in the hope that the mild climate would restore her. But it proved of no avail and on November 6, 1904, she died in that far-off land.

About this time the humorist met H. H. Rogers, the Standard Oil magnate, and the men became fast friends. Rogers gave his literary friend the aid of his financial experience, and Clemens was soon in possession of a comfortable income.

Although the future took on a brighter aspect, his evil spirit was on by stumbling, and one day, without asking the advice of his shrewd companion, Youth was induced into another disastrous investment. He placed $32,500 in the "Pleasure Company of America," a "pure food" organization, and was elected president; but the company went to the wall in 1907 and with it the $32,500 disappeared.

And now misfortune selected another weapon with which to attack the white haired veteran. His books, which had received harsh criticisms, but in November, 1907, "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," his boy masterpieces, were withheld from publication by the Public Library Committee as "unfit for young minds." Compliance of Detroit decided to ban with the ruling materials stripped from his grip. He signified with a slight motion that he wished to touch a copy of Carlisle's History of the French Revolution, which for years had been his favorite work. The first volume of the old Scotchman's masterpiece was at the moment lying on the coverlet.

His strengthless fingers fluttered two or three pages of the book, and it seemed as if he was searching for some favorite passage, a quotation, perhaps—he always had the most famous at his tongue's tip. But the weight of the book proved too much for him and it slid down upon his breast.

He smiled wearily at his daughter, then his head sank back to the pillow and he lapsed into the coma which death ended.

Despite protests, the doctors have it, ended the life which every one who had ever smiled with Samuel Langhorn Clemens hoped might be spared longer. That malady was coupled to some extent with asthma of the heart, brought about by excessive smoking.

His Heart Was Broken.

But what layman called a broken heart was more responsible than the world in general knew. When his chum, Henry H. Rogers, died last year, those close to him saw that his grief was intense. The odd companionship of humorist and multimillionaire was a source and dearer thing than any except the two friends realized.

Mark Twain died well off, though by no means a rich man," said Mr. Paine tonight. "He leaves a great number of manuscripts, mostly unfinished—some recent, others begun years ago. But he put all his affairs, literary and otherwise, in perfect order."

Mr. Paine, it is understood, will have charge of the completion of Mark Twain's autobiography and of the disposition of his unfinished writings. The last bit of literary work from the pen that he now laid down forever was a chapter of the autobiography in describing the tragic death of Jeanne Clemens. This was done in Redmonds recently, where Mr. Clemens was the guest of the American Vice-Consul, William R. Allen, whose young daughter Helen acted as amanuensis.

There were many callers at Stormfield during the day, but none except the members of the family saw the patient. Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Loomis, the former is vice-president of the Lackawanna railroad and the latter Mr. Clemens's favorite niece—heard of his death only as they were returning to New York.

Saw "Old Master" Coming.

Such was the case, too, with Jarvis Langdon, a nephew.

Already scores of messages of sympathy have reached here from all parts of the country. There will be beyond doubt, a universal tribute to the memory of Mark Twain.

The humorist it may be said welcomed death on the way from Bermuda he said to his secretary: "After I scarcely believe we can miss home. The Old Master seems determined to claim me on the ocean. Then, with his whimsical twist of mind, he added: 'And in a landlubber. It's tough, Albert.' Yesterday he said to his doctor: 'Why you fight to keep me alive?'

The land of the Camerons was his all years for Mary Twain. When he was no old abroad in his white flannel he had fairy tales for the children and stronger words for the men and youth, and age laughed at him, and with him, and loved him, as indeed did the whole world.

MARK TWAIN
BY HARRY B. METCALF

Great, gentle friend of all our human kind,
The muffled heart-beat of the whole world tells
Of grief that surges deep and unconfined,
Of pain a more than kingly loss compels!
We laughed with you from fleeting year to year,
Our lives uplifted by your message true;
For in each cloud, with eye of changeless cheer,
You found a gleam of silver, shining through!
Good-bye! We grieve, but treasured we will keep
Your memory in all the afterwhile;
You've shown us e'en, as you lay down to sleep,
That death is not a shadow, but a smile!

Clara became involved in a lawsuit over a farm which he had presented to his former secretary, Mrs. Ralph Ashcroft, on her wedding day, and which he later attached on the advice of his daughter.

The facts regarding this disagreeable affair were aired in the press much to the humiliation of the veteran humorist.

Then H. H. Rogers Died.

In the early part of 1909 his staunch friend and adviser, H. H. Rogers, died suddenly at his New York home. This great financier and the white haired humorist had been inseparable companions for a number of years. They made trips to Bermuda together, and when Rogers opened his railroad in Virginia Twain was one of the guests of honor. The joy that was greatly affected by the financier's sudden death.

In the latter part of 1909 Twain made another trip to Bermuda, and on his return his feeble appearance attracted a great deal of attention. Then the last crushing blow came the day before Christmas, when his youngest daughter, Jean, was found dead by the bathtub at his Redding home. The young woman had been a victim of epilepsy, and had been seized with one while in the bathtub.

During his last years all of the humorist's writings were under the control of Harper & Brothers. His autobiography, which appeared in serial form in a magazine, and several articles on Christian Science, were his most important works.

He also wrote a book questioning the authenticity of Shakespeare's works, which caused considerable comment.

As an after-dinner speaker he was always in demand, and in his unique costume of white flannels he made a striking appearance. He was always ready with a joke, and his wonderful personality made him an attraction on every occasion.

HUMORIST HAD FAVORITE BOOK ON DEATH BED

ward Quintard and Robert Halsey, the heart specialists who had kept him alive by stimulants for nearly twenty-four hours, and his servants, headed by "Old Katie," who for thirty years had been his housekeeper.

His last words were spoken to his daughter. What they were she only heard, for they were faint and almost inarticulate. Unable, then, to speak, he grasped a pad and pencil—the instinct to write seeming dominant even in the face of approaching senselessness.

Wanted His Favorite Book.

He traced the words "Give me my glasses." With the spectacles adjusted he gazed at the paper, placing his pencil to it as though to put down some farewell message, then his strength waned and the writ-

NOTED PEOPLE PAY TRIBUTES TO HUMORIST

Tributes to Mark Twain's personal integrity, genius and cheerfulness were paid today by men in all parts of the country. They showed that the death of the great humorist is keenly felt everywhere but his gospel of good cheer was known and that means every city, village and hamlet in America.

Among the tributes paid are the following:

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe:

"The news of Mark Twain's death will be sad to many people. He was personally highly esteemed and much beloved; a man of letters with a very genuine gift of humor and of serious thought as well."

Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson:

"It is impossible to exaggerate the loss to the country. It is something unique in itself."

Of Lovable Character.

Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University:

"All the world knows that in Mark Twain it has lost a delightful humorist, a man able to interpret human life with a flavor all his own; but only those who had the privilege of knowing him personally can feel the loss to the full—the loss of a man of high and lovely character, a friend quick to excite and give affection."

William Dean Howells.

William Dean Howells, who shared with Mark Twain the distinction of being the dean of American literature:

"Samuel L. Clemens's death has caused me deep sorrow. The loss to the literary world is irreparable. He was the most truthful man I ever knew."

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge:

"Mr. Clemens' death is a great loss to American literature and the departure of a great figure in American life."

In Class with Dickens.

Samuel Walter Foss:

"There is no doubt that Mark Twain is the greatest name in contemporary American literature. He was a humorist in the same class as Dickens and Swift. But he was far more than a humorist; he was a great novelist, a philosopher, a reformer, a thinker, and something of a poet."

From Hamlin Garland.

Hamlin Garland:

"Mark Twain was as distinctively American as was Walt Whitman. No one ever heard him speak without being inspired and no one ever saw him without being proud of him."

James Whitcomb Riley.

James Whitcomb Riley, the Indiana poet:

"He was so full of life that it is difficult to imagine him dead. He was great in every sense."

George Ade:

"Mark Twain's influence on American letters has already shown its potency. He grew old beautifully. He was almost an idol to me."

Theodore Roosevelt's Tribute to Mark Twain

PARIS, April 22.—Theodore Roosevelt to-day paid this tribute to Mark Twain:

Mark Twain was one of the finest men America has produced. His life was marked with sincerity and breadth of view, and his death causes the United States the loss of one of its finest citizens as well as of one of its best beloved authors. Mark Twain was distinctly American. Huckleberry Finn is the American boy, and with his companion portrait, Tom Sawyer, has a place in the heart of every real American. Even though Mr. Clemens' work has been nearly finished for some time, and little more could be expected of him, American letters have suffered a severe loss.

TWAINISMS

A Few Quotations From the Man Who Made the World Happy.

Many of Mark Twain's clever sayings are known to every one who reads. They are so familiar in fact that it has been forgotten that he was the author of them. Some of the gems follow:

Be virtuous and you will be lonesome.

I wouldn't give a cent to hear Jeannell on Moses, but I'd give $10 to hear Moses on Jeannell.

I never had any parents, hardly—just a father and mother—so I had to struggle on the best way I could.

What is my idea of happiness? Finding all the button ons.

What are the sweetest words in the world? "Not guilty."

When angry, count four; when very angry, swear.

Nothing so needs reforming as other people's habits.

If you pick up a starving dog and make him prosperous he will not bite you. This is the principal difference between a dog and a man.

To young people about to marry—don't.

MYSTERIOUS WOMAN AIDS WOLTER IN DEATH TRIAL

East Seventy-fifth street, where Wolter had his rooms, swore that she was in the kitchen of his flat on of March 24, the day of the tragedy; that she heard no sounds of struggle and that then and subsequently she saw no sack on the fire escape where the charred body of the girl is alleged to have been place by Wolter.

Saw No Signs of Murder.

Shown the gunnysack that encased the body and examined by Attorney W. D. Scott for the defence, the witness said that on Thursday, the day of the murder, it was on the floor in the hall filled with wood. Judge Foster questioned her.

"Did you see anything on the fire escape when you looked out Saturday?"

"No."

While you were in the kitchen Thursday did you hear any noise?"

"No."

Miss Gille testified that she saw the fire escape was clear when looking from the window by the clothes line. Prosecutor Moss showed her on a diagram that the fire escape was twelve feet away from where she said it was. She corroborated Katie Mueller, saying that there were two stores in the kitchen, the small one being put there Wednesday.

Wolter betrayed no signs of nervousness as he took his seat today, but shifted uneasily as his gaze met those of Ruth Wheeler's two sisters—Miss Adelaide and Miss Pearl Wheeler—and he examined the jurors' expressions anxiously.

The accused man went on the stand in his own defence shortly after noon.

Woman Tried to Shield Wolter.

The State went on piling up testimony yesterday crowning the overwhelming structure with the evidence of Katie Mueller, the girl who lived with Wolter as his wife, and as his wife supported him with the work of her hands.

Katie Mueller wanted to spare Wolter. She did her best to shield him in two minor matters, but in spite of her very evident attempt, she testified to the two noises in the night caused by the falling of the fire shield to the floor, and she testified that each time Wolter arose and went to the fire place, refusing to allow her to assist him in replacing the iron shield.

Mr. Moss then announced: "The people rest."

Attorney Scott moved that the judge instruct the jury to acquit his client, naming six grounds, all of which were denied.

"You may open the case, Mr. Scott," said Judge Foster. Mr. Scott, in a whispered conversation, informed the judge that his witness had not yet arrived and that he could not proceed without him.

Outlines Alibi.

"So as far as you can, then," said Judge Foster, and Mr. Scott then addressed the jury, commuting about ten minutes. "The testimony for the defence," said he, "will be to the effect that if a crime was committed at all, it was not committed by this defendant.

"He was not in the apartment at the time this crime is said to have been committed. He left the apartment at 8:30 in the morning and did not get back until near 3 o'clock.

"The testimony for the defence will be short. If we show you that Wolter was not in that apartment on that day, then he is entitled to a verdict of acquittal. If we bring a witness who will testify that there was no body on that fire escape on Friday or Saturday, we claim that the testimony must bear more weight than circumstantial evidence."

Strange Woman Witness.

"There was on the forenoon of Thursday a woman in the kitchen next to the rooms occupied by Wolter. A crime could not have been committed without that girl's hearing or seeing it.

"There was a woman washing clothes in that kitchen on Thursday. She was there again on Friday and Saturday, and on direct testimony we will base our defence."

The fireplace in which the still living body of the girl was partly burned was next set up in court. The places which Wolter is said to have painted to hide bloodstains were pointed out by the prosecution. The accused man kept his gaze averted from the exhibit.

The chief emotion of Wolter is vanity. When the trial went on the prisoner, sleek, smiling and apparently ignorant of the gravity of his predicament, took from his pocket a large envelope containing every picture of himself and every newspaper article that has appeared since the trial began. For some time he looked at them proudly.

The first witness today was John Mohl, a resident of the house where the body was found wrapped in—at the remains of Ruth Wheeler. The sight made Mohl sick. Called as Wolter's Cross-examined by W. D. Scott, chief counsel for Wolter, Mohl testified that every one on the top floor of the house had access to the kitchen adjoining Wolter's two rooms.

Prisoner Will be a Witness.

Basing their whole fight on the attempt to establish an alibi, the counsel for Wolter said they would call the defendant himself to the stand. Besides him only two witnesses to corroborate his story will be called.

Before calling to the stand Katie Mueller, who posed as Wolter's wife, the prosecution intimated that the girl's testimony would pave the way for the introduction of a mysterious witness whose existence has been unsuspected hitherto, with a story that riddles Wolter's contentions.

The most effective of the many damaging points brought out was the introduction of Ruth Wheeler's ring, found in the fireplace in his room where the body was partially burned, and of the dead girl's hand, clutching a wisp of hair, which Professor G. S. Huntington swore was not from her own head —pitiful testimony of the girl's struggle.

THE TONIC YOU NEED

If You Are Thin, Weak and Pale, Is the Remedy That Cured This Massachusetts Woman Who Was Tired, Worn Out and Discouraged.

Many people who are in a chronic condition of ill health really need nothing more than a tonic.

It is the blood that is at fault and with the vital fluid scanty, lacking in richness or purity, there are frequently produced an alarming lot of symptoms all of which will disappear when the blood is again built up.

The name anæmic has been given to the condition when the blood is thin and poor. It is a Greek word and means simply "too little blood." The patient is fatigued after slight exertion and the least exercise results in shortness of breath. It is a condition which always brings on a fear of consumption and it advances so gradually that its progress is seldom noticed until it is well established.

The one remedy for a bloodless condition is more blood. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the great blood-maker, have accomplished so many cures.

Mrs. L. Lipman, of No. 210 Bryant street, Malden, Mass., suffered for nearly four years from anæmia. She says:

"For nearly four years I suffered from anæmia, which was brought on by overwork. I was very weak and thin, had no color and my eyes were transparent. My blood did not seem to circulate, even when I rubbed my hands briskly there would be no warmth or color. I had severe bilious attacks which were followed by dizzy spells and terrible sick headaches. My rest did not help me and I was always tired and worn out. I was so discouraged that I became very nervous and received so little help from the doctor's medicine that I quit taking it.

"My home was in London, England, at the time of my sickness and I was treated at two hospitals. The physicians there said I had anæmia but I did not seem to get any better. Through a friend I was encouraged to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They were just what I needed for I soon gained in flesh and began to pick up in every way. I continued using the pills for some time and am in good health now."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. Our booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," is free on request.

YOUNG SLAYER OF WOMAN AT BAY IN HILLS

NEW YORK, April 22.—More than one hundred heavily armed policemen, sheriffs deputies, constables and other officers of the law in posses are scouring the Watchung mountains of New Jersey, intent on the capture of John Grant, a pallid-faced youth of North Plainfield, but formerly of Taunton, Mass., who murdered Mrs. Edna Covely, his boarding house keeper, in the presence of her children yesterday.

Grant, armed with the weapon with which he had killed the woman, is lurking in the underbrush or woods of the hills.

The hunted youth, who is slender, light haired, quiet mannered, and about twenty-one years old, appeared in Plainfield about two years ago. His home, he said, was near Boston.

Mrs. Covely, who was about twenty-four years old, and her husband Frederick, separated last Fall, she becoming the sole support of three daughters.

All the boarders were out and they had gone an hour when Grant, who had eaten his breakfast, appeared in the kitchen where Mrs. Covely was at work. What happened then was afterward told by little Marion Covely, with her sister Gladys, was in the room.

HARVARD MAN WINS HEART OF HEIRESS

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Mrs. Richard H. Townsend has formally announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marion T. Townshend, to Peter Goelet Gerry of New York.

While definite plans for the wedding have not been made, it is expected that it will take place in June and will be at the home of the bride's mother, in Washington.

Miss Townsend has for some time been one of the most attractive young women in Washington society.

Miss Townsend is a granddaughter of the late William Lawrence Scott, of Erie, Penn., who represented his Congressional district for years in Washington, and a daughter of the late Richard H. Townsend, of Washington.

She is a cousin of Mrs. Reginald Rodgers, of this city, who was Miss Thora Strang, of Erie, Penn. With her mother, she has been prominent in the society of Newport and Bar Harbor and has travelled frequently in Europe.

She has had many titled suitors, and her engagement to the Duke of Alba and others has often been rumored. She made her debut several years ago.

The estate of William L. Scott, which has been estimated as worth from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, was inherited in equal parts by his daughters, Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. Charles B. Strong.

Mr. Gerry is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry. His brother, Robert Livingston Gerry, married Miss Cornelia Harriman, daughter of the late E. H. Harriman.

He is a lawyer and a member of the Knickerbocker, Racquet and Tennis, Metropolitan, Rockaway Hunt and Turf and Field clubs and the Automobile Club, all of New York. He was graduated from Harvard in 1901.

DRAPER TURNED DOWN ON BEEF KILLING

Yielding to the wishes of the State Board of Agriculture, the Legislative Committee on Public Health has adversely reported upon the recommendation of Governor Draper for an investigation into the slaughter of cattle and sheep for human meats. It is probable, however, that the House will substitute a bill for the unfavorable report, which has been accepted by the Senate. Dr. Peters, the head of the Cattle Bureau of the Department of Agriculture, is credited with having had the influence necessary to give the Governor's plan a setback. Dr. Peters, whose term has expired, is holding office by reason of the fact that Governor Draper has not appointed his successor.

'ROYAL ROOTER' REGAN BACK TO FACE CHARGES

Michael J. Regan, the baseball fan who is well known throughout the baseball circles of Boston and who was arrested yesterday in Providence on the charge of having stolen $13,000 in bonds from the estate of the late Harriet N. Brown, was brought to Boston this afternoon and taken to police headquarters.

When Regan was first arrested he declared that he would fight extradition, but when Police Inspector George W. Patten went to Providence today Regan changed his mind and said he was ready to return.

For several years before his death Regan lived at the home of the aged Mrs. Brown, who had taken a fancy to him, and had left a will in his favor which was disallowed. There has been trouble over the estate since.

PATTEN SAYS HE WANTS NO COTTON CORNER

NEW YORK, April 22.—With the control of the price of cotton on the New York Cotton Exchange practically in his own hands, James A. Patten left for Chicago this afternoon to be gone a week. He feels that he is so completely master of the situation that he can leave without uneasiness.

"I wish you would deny for me," he told an American News Service reporter, "the report that I am trying to corner cotton. I don't want to run a corner in anything. You stand a better chance of losing than winning even in a so-called successful corner.

"I simply believe that cotton is worth more than it now sells for. It is sure to be a business proposition straight business. I have the cotton, and I want to sell it for all that I can get for it."

Earlier in the day Patten was heard to tell a friend that he could "put cash for all the cotton that he had no option on and dump it into the Atlantic Ocean without losing money."

He was asked if he had anything to say in the matter of the proposed Federal investigation of the cotton exchange.

"I don't see why it should alarm any one," was the reply. "The Government has as much right and interest in the cotton industry as it has in the lottery industry, as Eighth Ward and I suppose the authorities feel that it is their duty to keep in close touch with the situation."

MAN BURNED TO DEATH IN STABLE FIRE

BEVERLY, April 22.—Trying to save a number of horses that trampled him to death, Joseph Phillips, a hostler, lost his life in the burning of the stable of Andrew Ober, and his body was found in the ruins today. Seventeen horses were burned to death.

A second fire destroyed another stable at 2:45 a. m. today, and it is believed that there is a stable feeding at work in Beverly.

Great excitement was caused by the first fire because the stable was located in the heart of a residential section. George F. Stanley, a fireman, and William D. Sweetland were cut and bruised while fighting the fire. The loss was estimated at $20,000.

Thirty-five were in horses in the second barn, burned as it was used as a storehouse for furniture. Andrew Ober, the owner, lives at Hudson, N. H. This fire, too, caused many people from their beds and would have done great damage if it believed if the downpour of rain had not aided the firemen.

There was a series of barn fires here three years ago that were believed to have been set and it is feared that the feeling had returned.

How Do You Do It?

"How do you do it?" asked a prominent clothing man of our clothing buyer one day last week. "Where can you get clothing of the right sort in these days of increased prices to sell for ten dollars?"

"Well, it's just like this," our buyer replied; "we buy for spot cash—thereby getting all that's coming to us as far as low price is concerned. We buy in big quantities—sell at a closer margin of profit than other merchants. Then we stand back of every piece of merchandise we sell and protect each one of our customers by giving him his money back if he wants it. That's how we do it."

SOUTH BOSTON WANTS "OLD IRONSIDES"

The South Boston Citizens' Association wants the frigate Constitution taken from the Charlestown Navy Yard and anchored in Pleasure Bay, in sight of Fort Independence, and to that end has voted to ask Congressman O'Connell to make a formal request on the Navy Department for that stationing of the ship. It is the belief of the association that the ship would be a more effective patriotic object if moored where it could be seen by all passing in or out of the navy yard.

MISS CARTER FINDS DRAPER GOOD CHEER DISCIPLE IN OFFICE

By MISS THEORA CARTER.

National President of the Society of Good Cheer.

I have been honored with an audience by the "Good Cheer" Governor of the Cheery State of Massachusetts, and I think it should be a truly cheerful Commonwealth to have such a kindly, affable and stately gentleman for its chief executive. It is very pleasing to know that the good men of this noble old State have such an example of chivalrous courtesy as I found Governor Eben S. Draper to be.

My home is in the State farthest away from Massachusetts. I reside in Seattle, in the State of Washington, and, like all its sons and daughters, I am very proud of it. It is a very, very big State with untold treasures in forests, minerals and soil, and we are of the best of cheer in Washington, for we think there is no State in the whole union that is better, if there be one as good. But we are very mindful of the fact that there are many sons of Massachusetts in our State, many citizens there who once were Bostonians and who had Faneuil Hall and Old North Church, Bunker Hill and more beside which is revered the country over, for their home heritage.

The Massachusetts men and women who live in Washington have done a great deal to develop its resources and so spread there the leaven of culture they brought from home.

Felt No Timidity.

So when I came to Boston, Massachusetts, I wished very much to meet its highest official and tell him that I brought a Good Cheer message from the Pacific Northwest. I have had the privilege of meeting Governor Draper and of telling him of the missing of our society in my official capacity. I will not say I was timid, for I am a Western girl and in our great land even girls dream of great deeds and we are taught to do right and fear not. But still, as I rode by your storied Common, with its magnificent elms and shady walks, and caught a glimpse of your stately State House atop of Beacon Hill, I could not help but feel that I am a very little president and was about to meet a great Governor.

But Governor Draper received me so graciously that he put me at once at my ease and I found that I could talk to him as fast as to anyone—and I assure all my readers I can talk quite fast. The interview was arranged by my friends with Mr. William Murphy, the Governor's secretary. And I wish to say of Mr. Murphy that he was so nice to me that I really think he will be in the end as nice as the Governor himself and therefore the nicest of the nice.

The Bachelor Buttons.

I took with me the biggest bouquet I could carry—red and white roses and blue bachelor buttons!

"Why," said the Governor, "these flowers are beautiful. But I like the bachelor buttons the best."

"But," said I, "they need signify only a temporary state."

Being president of the Society of Good Cheer, I am proud to say, citizens of Massachusetts, I made your honored Governor laugh. There was a gentleman in the presence of the Governor when I reached the executive office, and I was honored by an introduction to Mr. John J. Higgins, District Attorney of Middlesex county. He was a most cheerful man to be in such a business, but it is one of the tenets of the Society of Good Cheer that it is best to do even painful duty with a smile, and I am sure Mr. Higgins must be a very humane, kindly official. No hard heart could lurk beneath such a pleasant manner.

The Governor Approves.

Governor Draper asked me to tell him of our society and its mission and was good enough to say that he approved of it heartily, and hoped he could help us spread good cheer all over Massachusetts. I told him our society wished to be useful in a field that did not seem to me, when I was ill for weeks away from home and friends in a Chicago hotel, to be half covered, if covered at all. I said to him: "Our society is not one which deals in charity. We do not give alms, but we do try to help by kind words, kind deeds and by visits which will cheer sad hearts that are far away from home and friends. We seek especially to brighten the thoughts and moments of friendless convalescents in hospitals or hotels and more than that to spread cheerfulness everywhere like a Heaven-sent contagion."

Missed the Continental Blue.

Governor Draper was delighted, he said, with the bouquet which I offered to him in the name of the Society of Good Cheer and I told him the tints, red, white and blue, were our organization colors. Our society is a patriotic one. Cheerfulness ought to be an American characteristic and all our members are going to try to make it so. No matter what happens, we have the grandest country in the world. So let us all Cheer Up!

The bouquet was tied with a bow of streaming ribbons, and to one of them was attached a card upon which I had written, "A tribute of Patriotism and Good Cheer to Our Governor, Eben S. Draper." I will frankly say I was delighted when Governor Draper asked Mr. Murphy, his secretary, to have the card sent to his home as he wished to keep it as a memento of our society.

But there is one thing I forgot to ask the Governor. You Massachusetts folks have painted your State House buff—one where in its exterior decoration is that other Continental Army color, blue?

WOMAN CLAIMS SPENCER FUND

SPRINGFIELD, April 22.—A claim for the rewards of $1,500 and $500 offered by the city council and the citizen's committee for information that would lead to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Miss Minta B. UP ONE FLIGHT OPEN EVENINGS

REPUBLICANS ADMIT DOOM OF UNCLE JOE

WASHINGTON, April 22—The Republican regulars are reported today to be convinced that Speaker Cannon is doomed. The withdrawal of the resolution introduced by Representative Fowler of New Jersey was a part of the insurgent program, the resolution being merely a notification that the war is on. The general view in regular and rebel Republican ranks and Democratic as well is that Representative Kitchin of North Carolina hit the nail on the head when he said:

"Uncle Joe has got to go and he knows it."

Since the Speaker's latest defiance of the insurgents the latter have been figuring on a regular to succeed Mr. Cannon as Speaker. Just as soon as a majority can be obtained, this making it clear that there will be no deadlock over the election, the insurgents will act. The program outlined by one of their leaders is to wait until several of the President's measures have been passed by the House and sent to the Senate. When this has been done, the resolution to declare the Speaker's chair vacant will be offered. There is no doubt on the part of the insurgents that such a resolution will carry.

GOV. DRAPER PAYS $100 FOR TAFT PICTURE

Governor Draper was congratulated today upon getting the fine autographed picture of President Taft that was auctioned off yesterday for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America at the Boston Theatre, but at the same time the Governor is trying to learn the name of the Back Bay woman who made him pay $100 for the picture by competitive bids.

The selling of the picture was a merry incident. Raymond Hitchcock was the irrepressible auctioneer. When he asked to have the picture started, a feminine voice from back in the audience responded promptly and vociferously:

"Twenty-five dollars!"

That was recorded as a fine start and the auctioneer said so and then began to get excited.

"Fifty dollars," drawled William Hodge, "The Man from Home."

"Who'll make it the seventy-five—seventy-five—do I hear the seventy-five?" cried Hitchcock.

"Seventy-five," came a response from two voices. One was that of the woman who started the picture and the other of an unknown man.

Then the Governor's bid was recognized and he got the picture for $100.

The benefit performance netted about $4,000 for the fund.

NEW THEATRE PLAYERS GIVE "THE NIGGER"

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

It was a plain case of facing the music at the Shubert Theatre last evening, and following "The Nigger" over rough dramatic roads to the land of bitterness and disappointment. Edward Sheldon, the author, is a nice, quiet young man, so fresh from Harvard that the paint is hardly dry, but he writes with a strong arm and red ink. In plain truth, "The Nigger" was jarring to the senses and left you in need of a new set of shock absorbers. It was without sentimental appeal.

The rare problem is a rather large subject for a young man of Mr. Sheldon's experience to move upon, but you could see lots of courage in his work. There was a perfect deluge of blunt speech that almost put the high sign on Eugene Walter, and you were deserving of forgiveness for believing that probably Mr. Sheldon didn't relish his job and attempted to unload himself in a great hurry.

Players Worked Hard.

In spite of the excellent acting, it was difficult to arouse any emotion over "The Nigger." The members of the New Theatre company in the cast were working against too heavy odds.

It was not pleasant to learn that Philip Marrow, rich and honorable to a degree that is found only in the drama, was the grandchild of a woman whose skin was black and whose life was spent in slavery. The fact that he was governor of the State and was bent on practicing high ideals did not soften the shock you felt when he told Georgiana Byrd of the great guilt that must forever separate them. It seemed needless to project so much misery and brutality just to make a play.

With but few exceptions, however, the company worked at concert pitch in the unhappy task. Guy Bates Post put sincere effort into the role of Marrow and gave the audience its only gripping thrill during the moments following the real discovery of his birth. Mr. Post was sure of himself at all times and gave a capital performance. Ben Johnson supplied the villainy of the play as Clifton Noyes, a distiller of fluids that, according to the playwright, are responsible for many of the outrages of the South. Mr. Johnson, whose work at the Castle Square Theatre a few seasons ago is pleasantly remembered, brought new credit to himself in a disagreeable part.

Praise for Miss Russell.

Miss Annie Russell did not give Georgiana Byrd any the best of it with her Southern dialect—a dialect that did not belong to the sunny Southland. Miss Russell won your confidence, though, in her one big scene with Mr. Post, and you promptly forgot the rest.

A rare piece of character acting by Lee Baker made Sheriff Thomas Long one of the delights of the evening, but he arrived too late to wipe out the unrest you had been feeling for three acts. Miss Beverly Sitgreaves made Daisy a "mammy" to life, and Jacob Wendell, Jr., succeeded in brightening things as Barrington, the governor's private secretary.

While "The Nigger" is without appealing force, it has the merit of conscientious getting.

THIEF ROBS JUDGE IN COURT HOUSE

WORCESTER, April 22.—A thief visited Justice W. C. Loring of Leominster at the courthouse and stole his bank note roll, amounting to $30. Employes of the courthouse have been missing articles for some time.

PASTOR FINDS POLITICS BEST WORK FIELD

The fact that his campaign expenses are being paid by the people at large, in the form of contributions of its part and many of its wealthiest men and women, is sufficient, in the opinion of the Rev. Lathrop Meeker of Revere, candidate for Congress from the Fifth congressional district, to bind him to the service of the people. Mr. Meeker, who resigned the pastorate of the Universalist Church at Revere to enter politics, is experiencing his first meetings each evening.

In explaining his decision to enter the congressional contest Mr. Meeker said:

"I resigned from my pastorate a few weeks ago because I felt that I could do a better work in the political field. The thing the church is preaching and talking about is grand. But under the present conditions throughout the country it is impossible for people to respond to the appeal.

"The political field is the primary thing and must be attended to first, and then will follow great fruits in the more important thing—the church.

"I first decided to enter this contest against Mr. Roberts shortly following the sweeping victory of Mr. Post in the Fourteenth District, and I feel confident that I shall go into Congress even more flatteringly. The people will pay no way, and this I shall be their servant.

"I have three planks in my platform. First, I believe in government ownership and administration of all natural resources. Mind you, natural resources, not the control of the tools of production.

"So you see I am not a Socialist. I believe the Socialists are wrong inasmuch as their methods are too radical. Now as to the second plank: I believe in taxation based on land values rather than on personal property, and third, ultimate free trade; that is, after the two above planks have been amended to

"It is a liberal movement, regardless of party. I like the word liberal much better than independent."

GIRL SWEARS AUNT POISONED HUSBAND

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., April 22.—Florence Harrison, the fourteen-year-old niece of Mrs. Pearl Armstrong, on trial here for the poisoning of her husband, gave startling testimony today. She said that her aunt filled two capsules with carbolic acid and said: "I guess this will put Jerge out of business." When they failed to kill him the girl testified her aunt filled two capsules with strychnine, remarking, "Maybe these will do the work."

INQUEST INTO WOOD ALCOHOL DEATHS BEGUN

WESTERLY, R. I., April 22.—Coroner Everett A. Kingsley of this town held an inquest today on the death of Daniel T. Sullivan of White Rock, one of the twelve persons of this community who are alleged to have been killed by drinking whiskey made from wood alcohol.

Nine witnesses are here to tell the coroner's jury what they know of the facts concerning Sullivan's death, which, like all of the others, was sudden and attended by symptoms of poisoning.

The Connecticut authorities are almost as much interested in the revelations expected from the inquest as are those of Rhode Island for several victims died in Stonington, Ct., just across the Pawcatuck River from this town. The clearing and contents of the stomachs of some of the Connecticut victims was sent to the State chemist in Hartford for analysis.

The inquest into Sullivan's death was ordered by Coroner Kingsley on Wednesday, following a long secret conference with Attorney-General Greenough. It had just received from Professor Whitney, the Harvard chemist, a report on the result of his analysis of the contents of Sullivan's stomach.

At the inquest today Coroner Eugene H. Lincoln of Providence acted as the personal representative of Attorney-General Greenough. Coroner Lincoln examined all of the witnesses for the government.

But one arrest has been made so far and that is of Douglas Johnson of this town who is charged with selling liquor without a license.

The inquest to-day excited the most wide-spread interest and the Town Hall was crowded.

WHALERS QUIT SHIP BECAUSE NOT PAID

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., April 22.—Ten dissatisfied members of the crew of the whaling schooner Margaret of Gloucester, Mass., now lying in Hampton Roads, left the vessel in a body. It is their intention of fleeting the vessel for wage claims in the United States Court at Norfolk. The Margaret left Boston some time ago on a cruise. She sprung a leak and put in Barbadoes, where for ninety-three days she was laid up for repairs. It is for this time that the men are demanding pay.

NAUGHTON THINKS JEFFRIES HAS FINE CORPS OF TRAINERS

Jeff Gets Benefit of Veteran Trainers

PAPKE TELLS CHAMP'S CONDITION

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

JEFFRIES TRAINING CAMP, Bowie-dennan, California, April 22.—Joe Choynski is now a full fledged member of Jeffries training staff. The veteran Cali fornian qualified this morning when he joined the former champion in a sprint to Boulder creek and return.

"I am not in very good condition at the present time," said Choynski upon his return, "but within the next ten days or two weeks I'll round to and be ready to give Jim all the ring work he wants. And from present indications, Jeff will want all the exercises of the kind that Choynski can give him."

Papke will be depended upon to try out Jeffries speed but there his usefulness will end. He is not big enough nor clever enough to give the big fellow the kind of rubbing he is in need of.

When Jeffries returned from his morning run he declared that he never felt better in his life.

Jeff Sure He Will Be Ready.

"I am certain I will go into the ring for this fight in better condition than I was when I won the championship from Bob Fitzsimmons," said he. "So far as I can see, by physical condition is perfect, and from the little work I have done with the gloves I am confident my old time speed will come back."

Jeff today went through all the paces, including baseball, handball, and shadow work. He is on the road and boiling.

"Methinks the lady doth protest too much," said one of the characters in a Shakespearian play, and ever since that much talk on any subject has been regarded as a sign of weakness.

If all the interviews garnished with Jack Johnson recently are authentic the champion is talking "to beat the band." Nature more he does not "preserve the unities" to any appreciable extent.

For instance, the other day Jack is reported to have said, and with some show of wisdom seemingly, that if he had mapped out any particular plan of fighting Jeffries he was not going to let the public in on the secret.

A day or so later Jack said that he was going right after Jeff the moment the gong signaled the advance and was going to keep after him until the man from Burbank sprawled upon the floor.

Jack is sneering at the helpers Jeffries is gathering around him. He refers to Corbett, Choynski, Bob Armstrong and Farmer Burns as antediluvians and opines that they will be of little service to Jeffries while the latter is training.

"I am going to have a lot of young huskies around me—fellows who can stand wear and tear and receive out stiff punches on their own account," is what Jack is reported as saying.

Allowing that no fighter possessing the first principles of humanity scorns his own force and talent upon a sparring partner, it is a question whether men of experience such as Jeffries has selected are not of more service to a boxer undergoing preparation than an outfit of human punching bags. In a way Choynski, Corbett, Jeffries and Farmer Burns are veterans but each of them has a valuable experience to draw upon. Choynski is the only man who has earned the credit of knocking out Jack Johnson, and Jeffries has always admitted that the hardest punch he ever received from an opponent was from Joe Choynski.

These things carry with them the suggestion that Choynski is a valuable man to have around at this particular time.

What is more, Choynski always was a student of matters pugilistic and will, no doubt, be able to give Jeffries valuable pointers in regard to Johnson's ring methods. Corbett, again, is a walking encyclopedia of ring methods, and knows all about Johnson, Jim is known about the most effective self-taught boxer known to the ring. He made a point in his days of activity of "having them on" with every man he came across who was suspected of either natural or acquired talent as a defensive and blocker of punches.

Armstrong is a useful trial horse and who fights has the knack of the training grind with his native humor and calls flow of wit.

Farmer Burns Has Wisdom.

Farmer Burns is probably one of the wisest that Jeffries has around him. His stock of "book larnin'" is scarce, and the chances are if you mentioned Nathaniel Hawthorne to him he would want to know who "Nat" ever licked.

But the farmer has been a long time on the road and as the saying goes has marked learned and inwardly digested a great deal that has been useful to him and the men he has had to do with.

Judge of the following little incident on Tuesday that Burns delivered recently at Rowardennan:

"I don't see why we do judge a man's strength and wind by holding him to a spell of work. You have to see him working day after day and you have to study him when he is resting. You must observe the way he cools out and the way his breathing regulates itself after five rounds. Some visitors will watch a fellow slamming the punching bag and say right off, 'he's all in.' Don't you pay any heed to that. The punching bag doesn't strike back. When a man is opposed to another man there is a greater strain on his strength than when he is punching the bag and that's never known until he gets into the ring, for there he meets with excitement which also doesn't affect while training, and excitement has a very wearing effect on an athlete of any kind."

JOHNSON SAYS IT WILL BE A CINCH TO WHIP JEFF

CHICAGO, April 22.—Before leaving for the coast Jack Johnson relieved himself of the following eloquence:

"I leave Chicago with the utmost confidence of defeating James J. Jeffries when we meet in the ring, July 4. The pugilistic world has never had a fighter more capable of defending the championship than I am. It is a shame Jeffries is not the champion of old, for I am sure the defeat at my hands would be just as much of a walk over under such conditions as it is now.

"Jeffries knows he is meeting the fastest man he ever fought in his life. He knows he will meet the biggest and strongest fighter in the ring forced. He also knows that I have as much science as James J. Corbett ever had, and I have doubly the steam back of my blows.

"When I shake him up with that left of mine James will think I have a bunch of lead in my glove. I'll just keep jabbing him and getting out of harm's reach until I wear the big fellow down.

"I am not egotistical, but I honestly believe Jeffries will be unable to land a blow on me."

Johnson divided attention with his wife, who was at his side, her baby, hands and clothing agitator with diamonds. Her blonde head contrasted oddly with the face of the big fighter as he smiled broadly in response to cheers.

After spending $721 for tickets, compartments and berths for the ten members of his party, Johnson snapped a rubber band around a roll of bills containing more than $1,000, and even in the crowd lolloped as he carelessly jammed the large roll into a trouser pocket.

BROCKTON IS SPORTY TO-DAY

More than 150 local sports will kill two birds with one stone to-day in Brockton. They will go down from here to see the opening game of the New England League in Brockton and then remain over for the big show at the Union A. C. In the windup for this all-star program will appear Eddie Sherlin of this city and Willie Moody of Philadelphia. In addition to the delegation who will go to the show town to cheer Steve Flanagan's boys there will be several more that will not leave Boston until the evening trains which leave at 6.13 and 7.13.

The dyed-in-the-wool sports of Roxbury will be well represented on this card. Sherlin will not want for rooters. The championship of New England is at stake in the match between Max Landy and the Cambridge professor, Joe O'Brien. Johnny Noonan, the man who cheers the fellow with the right-hand wallop, will spend the evening rooting himself hoarse for this pair. Both lads use the right frequently and vigorously. This will keep the Kilmarnock shouting for the pair.

Manager Flannery has decided to start this show fifteen minutes ahead of schedule time so that the Boston members of the Union A. C. will have ample time to make the 10.47 train home.

STARRATT BUYS A YACHT TO CRUISE

The Hollis Burgess Yacht Agency has sold the twenty-two-foot sloop Marie, owned by Harold B. Reed of Boston, to a prominent Boston yachtsman, and the twenty-one-foot sloop Perhaps II., owned by J. E. Robinson of Dorchester, to S. A. Starratt of Roxbury, who will use her in Nova Scotia.

The same agency has also sold the eighteen-foot sloop La Chica, owned by Walter S. Alley of Beverly, to W. O. Todd of Providence, R. I.; the Herreshoff Newport one-design class knockabout Hope, owned by H. Holton Wood of Brookline, to C. F. Lyman of Boston, who will use her for racing this season in Newport; the knockout Whim, owned by William G. Thurber of Providence, R. I., to Dr. C. B. Holmes of Cincinnati, and the twenty-five-foot cruising auxiliary sloop Rembin, owned by Thomas J. Vinson of Boston, to W. J. Norcross of Brookline.

BASEBALL MAGAZINE FULL OF FEATURES

The May number of the Baseball Magazine contains a wealth of matter which will be eagerly read by the horde of hungry fans who devour with avidity everything within reach that pertains to the great national sport. No one ought to miss the splendid story about Christy Mathewson that is exceedingly fascinating. Then there is a chapter on the visit of the University of Wisconsin to Japan, illustrated, to which Yoneji Yuangi and D. J. Flanagan contribute, the latter a member of the University of Wisconsin baseball team.

STRIKES OUT 22 BATTERS.

Hardy, the Harvard Freshman pitcher, made a great record yesterday, striking out twenty-two batters in a twelve-inning game with Framingham High. Harvard won out by the score of 2 to 1.

Before and After the Game

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

Of course, you read all about those three home-runs in the Baseball Extras of the BOSTON AMERICAN yesterday afternoon, but it is not proper to allow the sweats to pass into history without a few more lines of type.

There are three new pairs of shoes and fifteen pounds of tobacco in Put's flats to-day. The new shoes are owned by Stahl, Carrigan and Karger and each of the three has five pounds of smoke stuff. In addition to the cheers of the multitude our noble athletes receive merchandise of various sorts whenever they clout the pill for four bases.

Besides the little perquisites of shoes and tobacco our athletes are paid for playing ball. Could anything be more delightful than the life of a ballplayer on a winning club—while he lasts? (While he lasts is right.)

It will be a long time before three home runs are clouted to the left field seats in one game again. Other pitchers may not be so kind as to pass up three fat curve balls to our right-handed batters the way Groom did. When a right-hander catches one of those curve balls over the left fielder on the other team is bound to get busy.

Karger's drive was the fiercest of the three but Stahl did the most spectacular. The bases were full when the big first baseman landed on one of Groom's lemons. The funny part of it was that Groom had purposely passed Speaker, the next batter. There was no need of such haste. The batter the ball crashed into was the setting Stahl showed up and jogged home. Pat Ball jumped out to Lifted, who threw home and Street touched Jake, but the play was a force, Stahl on first. It is a home-run on any grounds even if the ball does jump out again.

Carrigan and Karger's drives came in the eighth, one after the other. It was 3 to 2 on the game when Groom tried to fool him with a curve which he belted into the left-field corner seats quite close to the foul line.

But Karger landed on the first ball pitched. There was a loud crash and the ball sailed almost on a line into the far corner, a much harder drive than Stahl's but not so high. Wagner also got a ball down there, but it landed foul by half an inch. Fortunately for the Statesmen there were no more right-handed hitters on the team or the total bases for the day might have been considerably more than 29.

Karger certainly can hit that ball some. No man on the team can drive it farther when he lands right. Good thing to have a pitcher that can break up a game now and then. Our twirlers are a pretty fair batting lot, taken as a whole.

The attention of the score board boy is called to the fact that his ladder is in the way most of the time and we fellows can't see the returns from the other counties.

Donovan has started cleaning house and three of his pitchers will depart at once if not sooner. Elmer Steele has been sold good to the American Association. Dugey Guess it's good bye for Ehman. The big fellow didn't show enough to warrant the club keeping him. He has been South with the team two years running. He should have been turned adrift with Dewver or he may never come back.

No more "ladies' days" at the Huntington avenue yard. The smallness of the grandstand forces the management to take this step.

Jesse Burkett, president, manager, captain and treasurer of the Worcester club, saw the game. He sat with Manager Mike Kelley who is under a suspension. They played together on the Cleveland team for years ago. Steve Flanagan, who monopolized all the titles connected with the management of the Brockton club, was also a spectator. It's back to the trolleys for Burkett and Steve to-day as the New England season opens.

Joe Wood will not be able to work for several days. His pitching hand is bandaged and old Dr. Green will let him put on a uniform. Joe hurt his hand in practice before Tuesday afternoon's game and although he went in the box he could not pitch a ball.

HARVARD BEATEN IN LACROSSE GAME

SWARTHMORE, Pa., April 22.—In the annual lacrosse game Swathmore had little trouble defeating Harvard, 11 to 7. Swathmore scored six times before Harvard counted.

Save in the first half the Crimson team made a beautiful spurt and raged the ball three times in as many minutes. Hubbard distinguished himself by scoring five out of its seven points.

KAUFMAN BEATS UP JACK O'BRIEN

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 22.—After three tame rounds Al Kaufmann at Duquesne Garden, suddenly woke up and administered to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien a lacing that cleared away the cobwebs of suspicion from the minds of the spectators. The second and third rounds were tame. O'Brien finally reached Kaufmann's nose and blood flowed.

This angered the Californian, and in the fourth round he cut loose and went after his man hammer and tongs, and O'Brien was forced to clinch repeatedly. He was severely punished during the last three rounds. Twice O'Brien went to his knees.

STRAIGHT DOPE FOR SPORT FANS

WELL, THOSE SPEED BOYS WENT out after revenge on the Senators yesterday and they surely got it. We can stand a whole lot more of that kind of ball playing. It has a very cheering effect.

EVIDENTLY THAT TEN-ROUND SCRAP over in New York last night did not settle the question of supremacy between Pal Moore and Jimmy Walsh. Some of the New York papers give it a draw while others give the newer Philadelphia boy credit for out-pointing the Bostonian. At any rate the bout goes on the records as a no-decision scrap and the youngsters are pretty sure to be hooked up again. This time Boston may get the match, as I understand Matchmaker Johnny Mooney of the Armory is already dickering with the managers of the pair. Lots of local fans would like to see the bout staged here with some weight limitations, but it's more than an even money bet that the Moore people will insist on catchweights again. This will send Moore into the ring with at least six or eight pounds weight on Walsh. This was about what he had last night. Weight or no weight, it will be a lively scrap and I hope the Armory will land it.

Do Clothes Make the Girl?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Style is not as important as neatness. Just look at the two girls in this illustration. They are dressed alike, but one is neat and so stylish, while the other is careless and dowdy

I CAN'T honestly say that clothes make the girl, but they certainly have much to do with it.

The other day, on Twenty-third street, I saw two girls dressed identically alike.

Both were pretty, but there was no comparison between their appearances. One was trig and smart; she walked with shoulders back and head erect. Her hair was becomingly done. Her suit was well brushed. Her gloves and shoes were neat—taken all together she was a most attractive little person.

Both men and women looked admiringly after her as she tripped along.

She and her friend had evidently bought suits and hats alike; but what a painful contrast in their general appearance!

The other girl's suit looked as though some one had flung it at her. Her hat was dusty, her gloves worn at the finger tips, one shoe lace dragged in the street. She dragged along, with head poked forward and rounded shoulders. She was not ill, or delicate; her color was too good for that. She was merely careless and slovenly.

I'd hate to see my brother marry a girl of that kind; I know just how uncomfortable and unhappy a home he would have.

Expensive clothes won't make you look well dressed; you must learn how to put them on properly.

The Dust on the Hats

The average man can't tell whether your gown is made of satin or cotton, but he knows if there is a hole in the finger of your glove, or if your shoes are run over at the heels.

Men are almost invariably neat and they despise slovenliness in a woman.

The other day I came down Fifth avenue on the top of a 'bus just about 6 o'clock.

From my high seat I could look down on the hats of my sisters.

It was a queer collection, but that of course was the business of the individual wearers.

If a girl chose to waste her money on a hat lined with scarlet and trimmed with American beauties, it was none of my business.

But what I did criticize was the dusty condition of most of the hats. I know perfectly well that a hat gets dusty during the day [illegible]

The dust I speak of was [illegible] and [illegible] petals [illegible] that [illegible] importance [illegible] neatness is [illegible] those two girls and note the difference with [illegible] you rather look like.

You [illegible] yourself with [illegible] vanity.

And [illegible] vanity and untidiness [illegible] I'd choose vanity.

TRIMMER WAS ALL RIGHT, BUT HE GOT IN "DUTCH"

By KENNETT HARRIS

I MAY say that we are a pretty sociable lot in Bibberley Heights. We have our little differences, of course, and I am obliged to acknowledge that there is a faction so lost to pride as to wish to merge our beautiful little municipality in the overgrown, unhandsome, jerry-built, cheaply populated corporation of Cedarvale, on the paltry pretext of reducing taxes, which faction we shall have to wipe the earth with at the next election; but aside from that and in spite of that, we are neighborly, and anything like the case of Trimmer is decidedly the exception.

Trimmer came in in '02. The first I knew about it was when the Reverend Tobey told me. "He is a very estimable gentleman," said the Reverend, "and will be an acquisition to the suburb."

I was glad to hear it. "But what makes you so cock sure about it if you haven't seen him?" I asked.

"I have had highly eulogistic letters concerning him from the church at Bongete," replied the Reverend. Which settled it for him.

He told me that Mr. Trimmer had purchased the old Richardson place next door to Timrod, who owns the house with the seventeen gables, as Patsy calls it. I thought that I would saunter over and make a call after dinner but the [illegible] came and I decided to put it off until the next evening. I saw Timrod on the eight-fourteen in the morning though, and asked him how he liked his new neighbor.

Reverend Tobey says that he is a very estimable gentleman," I said.

They Go Forth to Call

"I have no doubt he is," answered Timrod. "I suppose that I won't mind him so much when I get a little used to him," he added.

"What's the trouble?" I inquired.

"No trouble at all," replied Timrod. "Only I don't think either he or his wife plays bridge. And that was all I could get out of him.

After dinner that evening the Madam picked a bunch of her sweet peas and I put a couple of extra cigars in my vest pocket and we sallied forth to call on the Trimmers. They were both out on the porch when we arrived and I am bound to say that they neither of them showed any signs of exuberant delight at our appearance. Trimmer was a tall, angular, sandy haired man of middle age, with a severe expression of countenance that did not relax in the least as he asked us if we would like to sit down. I hastened to tell him who we were and why we had called, as I feared that he had his suspicions of us.

Objected to Smoking

"It's very good of you," he conceded. "A fine evening, is it not?"

My wife tendered her bouquet.

"Thank you," said Mrs. Trimmer. "I used to be very fond of sweet peas. I [illegible] like them of course. I think some of the shades very pretty, but don't you find the odor rather overpowering?"

I am ashamed to say that I here became [illegible] of my cigar for the first time [illegible] you see we have pretty free and easy [illegible] among ourselves [illegible] those [illegible] know or rather [illegible] I at once tried to redeem myself and hoped that [illegible] smoke was [illegible] disagreeable to the lady. Her husband answered for her. "I think that if you were to [illegible] the other side where the wind would blow it from us, it would not be so bad," he said. "To tell you the truth the smell of tobacco is disagreeable to me aside from the moral objection that I have to the habit, and my wife shares my dislike."

I begged pardon and they were magnanimous enough to grant it, but the conversation [illegible] languished and we left early. They returned our call about three weeks later and I remarked to the madam that I had no doubt we would not mind Mr. Trimmer so much when we got a little used to him, thereby quoting Timrod. She replied that she was afraid we would [illegible] energy of them to appreciate their good qualities as they deserved and Rogers and Draper expressed the same fear.

"What have you got against him?" Draper asked Rogers.

"Nothing in the world," replied Rogers. "It's what he has against me that's robbing me of my sleep. I asked him to come over and have a game of cards and he felt it to be his duty to tell me what he thought of cards and people who played them. I haven't felt much like holding up my head since."

Trimmer's Opinions

"He thinks that smoking is a filthy, extravagant and unwholesome habit," I informed them.

"Conducive to habits of sloth and of intemperance in other directions," supplemented Draper. "I know. He told me so. That's why I'm holding my pipe in my hand unlighted."

[illegible] Madam struck a match on the [illegible] and lit the pipe for him [illegible] Mrs. Tannahill for several [illegible] lemonade at her party [illegible] Rogers. He said he [illegible] nor he could count [illegible] remaining [illegible] to stay [illegible] Timmy [illegible] putting up [illegible] day that [illegible] gave him [illegible] for saying what he did say and [illegible] it has [illegible] coarseness."

[illegible] that Mr. Trimmer is a very estimable gentleman," I said. "But the Rev. Tobey and he are at loggerheads. He thinks that the Reverend was too lax [illegible] the [illegible] at the [illegible] and he told him so."

That was true. And there were lots of other things that were true. And the result of them all was that Trimmer became [illegible] unpopular. I know that our [illegible] and yet I had no suspicion [illegible] become as bad as they [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] of the people [illegible]

[illegible] said Mrs. Trimmer [illegible] I know is [illegible] our minister, and [illegible] sort of the people [illegible] in seven [illegible] and Mr. [illegible] her on the [illegible] fault to some [illegible] with a sigh [illegible] was quite affecting and we [illegible] that it was, and determined to [illegible] the Trimmers again at all hazards. But we put it off at [illegible] to our present [illegible] coming to me one Saturday afternoon with the pasteboard for the big game—the Whelps and the Buccaneers.

He Just Got in "Dutch"

We were enjoying it to the limit as [illegible] Timmy jolted me in the [illegible] where he pointed [illegible] in the face and [illegible] two benches below [illegible] him and the arm [illegible] in the air was over [illegible] It made me gasp [illegible] Dimple was at [illegible] to watch the game [illegible] was a good play I [illegible] to look at Trimmer [illegible] He was crazy, just as the game ended, a Whelp fan shot off his mouth and in another moment Trimmer hauled off and pasted him and they went to the ground together.

"By gosh! he's human, after all," said Timmy. "Come along and let us help him out."

We pushed through, but the Whelp fan had enough before we got there, and the [illegible] so that he never [illegible]

[illegible] were getting to know Trimmer he's not so bad as you'd think. The trouble was that he got in "Dutch," so to speak.

Woman's Treatment of Woman Improving

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

IF YOU are a clubwoman, and you find discord and narrowness of mind prevailing in your club, put a watch upon yourself to see that you are not guilty of the same faults you deplore in [illegible]

Women are growing with amazing rapidity out of the old errors and follies which [illegible] early times [illegible] and fussy ideas and [illegible]

Let each woman who finds petty qualities in her set a bar to her enjoyment of the [illegible] put a watch upon herself and eliminate similar flaws from her own disposition. In that way she will be doing a practical work toward broadening womankind. Let her be brave and courageous in her treatment of other women and prove by her acts that she has the courage of her convictions, for that is the quality most needed by woman today.

Why Are Women Capricious?

By ARLETTA B. CANFIFLD

WOMAN is always [illegible] changeable and [illegible] a truth, and it will take long to get it out of common [illegible]

Why should [illegible] changeable and capricious?

Why should she smile and work ahead as if nothing bothered her, when her heart is ready to burst with things that she must keep to herself?

Woman was given the "ring to hold" in this way of tracks and tears. She was fitted for it and made strong where it most hurts to carry dreadful burdens.

Woman is given a habitation with camps inside of it to take care of. She has to be gay, then sober, for a moment at a time. She cannot put anything intense into action against the man who is snubbed, neither can she deal mildly with the man with the [illegible] [illegible]

Now it is nothing against a man, when he has been injured by another man to keep from showing what it is that hurts him and what he is going to do about it.

He is expected to work and work hard, [illegible] everybody is looking for him to do something. But a woman must smile, say something nice about the man who has either carelessly or on purpose wrought her ruin, and hide the sting from the world.

There is nothing in a woman's side of the question which will allow her to tell. She is supposed to sit up and look pretty while her heart breaks, and, of course, she does it.

So, when the would-be friend comes about asking questions and pretending to sympathize, this woman must turn her off with pretty joking terms and make her see that there is nothing to sympathize about and nothing to need her sympathy.

[illegible] hard old world to conquer.

[illegible] written about a man and a woman [illegible] the woman make up [illegible] all [illegible] in this world. That [illegible] responsible for them.

[illegible] kindly [illegible] relation [illegible] some time?

[illegible] things would be settled by [illegible]

ICE CARNIVAL FOR CHARITY.

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

THOSE interested in the Sharon Sanitarium are delighted that the skating carnival, which was to have been given for the benefit of that institution a week or so ago and was postponed, is to be given Monday in the New Boston Arena.

The carnival will be held during the afternoon and evening, and everything now points to a huge success. The postponement will work to the benefit of the carnival, as many finishing touches have been put on the arrangements, which would otherwise have been impossible.

The decorations will be much more elaborate and will add not a little to the impressiveness of the ensemble. Potted plants, palms and bay trees will be used in the decorations of the main foyer, where refreshments will be served. Here there will be placed fifty tables, and the following named members of the Vincent Club will serve: Misses Barbara Burr, Marjory Prescott, Mary Parkman, Catherine Foster, Elizabeth Porter, Elizabeth Denny, Rosamond Bradley, Marian Weld, Katrina Amory, Anna Winsor, Charlotte Allen, Julia Shepley, Mary Pierce, Madeline Dixon, Nora Thayer, Anita Clark, Ellen Farnsworth, Laura Greenough, Dorothy Draper, Esther Freeman, Nina Burnham, Jane Bigelow, Edith Fitz, Constance Zerrahn, Amy Peabody, Ruth Nickerson, Elizabeth Brooks, Elizabeth Grinnell, Harriet Woods and Katherine Saltonstall.

The ushers, also Vincent Club members, have had an opportunity to get acquainted with the seating arrangements. As there are nearly four thousand seats it will be no small task to care for the crowds of the afternoon and evening. Miss Marian Homans will have charge of the ushers, who will be dressed in white. The waitresses will be in black, with white caps and aprons.

Mr. Alfred Winsor, Jr., who has charge of the hockey contests at the carnival, has made a change in the afternoon match. In place of Arlington High, the Harvard freshman team will meet the Newton High School.

A GREAT STAGE SUCCESS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THE world moves very slowly in some directions. We are still in an age when lofty impulses are misunderstood and serious endeavors are unappreciated, which applied specifically and locally might remind you that the New Theatre company of New York in its week at the Shubert Theatre has not lived up to the sorry reputation that some of its short-sighted critics have wished upon it.

That the New Theatre and its excellent company have yielded a two-fold service there can be no doubt—we have had ample proof of that this week. It has given untried playwrights a hearing at a time when the doors of the stage have seemed nailed up and bolted. It has given still greater service to playgoers by placing before them the best there is in the dramatic field under conditions that raises the stage to an educational value that cannot be underestimated.

Is Not a Plaything

The New Theatre is not a millionaire's plaything—it is an institution of the greatest public value, and those critics who have taxed their vocabulary in calling it names have brought out nothing but their own pitiful shortcomings.

The New Theatre productions are not dull and boresome—they are not heavy with weary classics. They are carefully planned and carefully executed productions that will interest and entertain any intelligent playgoer. Through no other source than one like the New Theatre would it be possible to witness a performance of "The School for Scandal," for instance, under such ideal playing conditions. The artistic strength of the organization makes possible the very strongest presentations of old plays, as well as the works of writers of to-day.

Of Artistic Value

The declaration of the founders of the New Theatre that it is not to be conducted for gain should strengthen rather than weaken its position, and if any body of men are willing to back their conviction that there is room, if not positive demand, for such an organization they earn well-merited indorsement.

The position of the New Theatre in New York is permanently fixed; its artistic value is as sound as the men who are behind it. Out of this splendid missionary work it is not hard to believe that a similar theatre, conducted on logical, reasonable lines, would succeed in Boston, where the call of art seldom goes unheeded. Winthrop Ames, director of the New Theatre, has hinted that he has entertained ideas along such lines, and that he has already secured a site in this city. He deserves to succeed, and the man is a poor citizen who does not give him cordial support, in thought at least.

No, Mr. Critic, the New Theatre is not a failure—it is the greatest permanent success the American stage has ever known. What if the acoustics are bad in the New Theatre? They are also bad in other public halls. What if some of the performances you have seen did reveal imperfections? It is our imperfections that make us human.

The founders of the New Theatre are not trying to uplift the stage—they are treating the stage as if it was an important American institution that requires intelligent touches. And the touches have been applied.

SOCIAL AND CLUB NOTES

The annual dinner of the Boston and New England alumni of Syracuse University will be held May 5. Chancellor James R. Day will be the principal speaker. Rev. Dr. William H. Van Allen is president of the association. President Huntington of Boston University will also speak.

The annual class dinner of the class of 1901, E. H. S., took place last night at the Boston City Club. Forty graduates were present. Mayor Fitzgerald spoke on "How to Improve Boston." These officers were elected: Jack Graham, president; J. L. Bishop, secretary and treasurer; E. W. Allen, E. H. Draper and J. L. Killion, executive committee.

The dramatic department of the New England Conservatory of Music gave a dramatic recital last evening in Jordan Hall. Among those who took part were U. Holmes Bishop, Madeline St. Laurent, Hortense Drummond, Edith B. Nickell, Frank H. Harrington, Catherine McDonald, Catherine Barker, George B. Bridenbaugh and Harry Chamberlain.

The Central Branch of the United Irish League elected these officers last night at the American House: President, Augustine Daly of Cambridge; vice-presidents, P. M. Keating and James T. Barrett; treasurer, Michael Morrison; secretary, C. O'Connell Galvin. Among the speakers were John J. O'Hare of Roxbury and John O'Callaghan.

"THE SPENDTHRIFT" A POWERFUL STORY OF AMERICAN LIFE BEGINS IN TO-MORROW'S BOSTON AMERIC[AN]

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

TRADE SLUMP HITS WALL ST.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Unfavorable developments in the mercantile situation growing out of the cotton squabbles furnished the incentive for a fresh selling movement in the stock market in Wall Street today. New low prices for this movement were established, and losses of from 1 to 2 points were scored by the standard railroad and industrial shares.

Selling was heaviest in Steel, Smelting, Amalgamated Copper, Reading, Union Pacific and B. R. T. At the conclusion of the evening a point were recovered, but very active in the early hours, the shares changing hands at 83¾ and 83¾. Following the opening there was a slight rally, due to short covering. This, however, was followed by another decline that increased the losses 1 to 2 points.

American shares were heavy in London. Copper stocks were a little lower on the curb.

The Boston & Albany Railroad will issue $2,000,000 of new bonds in the near future.

GREAT ART FAKES—How the world has classified "art" and some of the strange results will be most entertainingly told and illustrated in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

FINANCE BOARD MAY EMPLOY EMERSON

The appointment of engineering expert for the Finance Commission will be tendered Superintendent of Streets Guy C. Emerson if Mayor Fitzgerald removes him from the office which he now holds. This is the announcement made to-day by municipal reformers. It is known that there is friction between Mr. Emerson and the Mayor because the former will not make removals which would enable the Mayor to appoint Matthew Cummings and Charles R. Cutter to Street Department positions which they formerly held. It is expected that the Mayor will remove Mr. Emerson. In that event his expert knowledge as an engineer would make him valuable to the Finance Commission, especially in the matter of reviewing contracts.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The action of the stock market is not regarded as at all peculiar under prevailing conditions. Natural and technical conditions do not cause anxiety and the public temper is one of average content.

$ $ $

In such a situation as this it would not be at all surprising should the price level go lower temporarily, but as brokers are seeing to it that all accounts are well margined there is no danger of hurried selling.

$ $ $

The technical condition of the market calls for a further rally, but whether it will be merely a rally or a real recovery no one is brave enough to say in the absence of knowledge of what might happen at Washington.

$ $ $

Nearly everybody in the stock market is looking so far ahead and worrying so much about things that probably will not happen that some of the very strong interests are beginning to feel that it is nearly time to buy stocks for an important campaign. It is not possible to find any other period in the history of Stock Street when there was such absolute certainty on the part of so many persons, including both bank presidents and messenger boys, that the country is going to ruin.

$ $ $

Railroad and industrial stocks are in a strong position, and there is nothing fundamentally wrong anywhere. There are large supporting orders under the market at all times, so that in case of a sudden raid by the bear element disaster would not follow.

$ $ $

As a bull factor, the Street rates the continued improvement of railroad earnings as next in importance to the excellent crop prospects and the probability of an easier tendency of money.

$ $ $

The crop report of the St. Paul shows that on practically all divisions seeding has been completed, or almost so. Cold weather and snow has done little damage to the grain crops, although in a number of cases fruit and vegetables have suffered. There has been seeding of corn in Minnesota and Missouri, while in Iowa planting of corn may be retarded by the weather, although some farmers have begun to plant there. An official said that if there had been any money made trading in land along the new St. Paul extension it was for the benefit of the stockholders and not for any clique of directors.

$ $ $

There is more of a disposition to take on Atchison than there has been, although the buying is not large in volume. The fact that the company is about to spend $31,000,000 in improvements and extensions indicates that the management is determined to keep the system up, no matter how much money it may be necessary to spend.

$ $ $

Negotiations regarding the contract between Chicago and the People's Gas Company will begin next November, three months before the expiration. The company delivers gas for 55 cents. The company's representatives will hold out for the present price, while the committee on public utilities will demand that the price be reduced to 75 cents. A conference is that the price will not be less than 80 cents. In any event, holders of People's Gas need have no anxiety. The company will have no trouble in maintaining its present dividend of 7 per cent. The success of a gas organization depends not so much on the rate charged, within a reasonable compass, but on the new business acquired; as after a certain amount of gas is produced by a plant additional amounts can be made at a very low figure. The growth of Chicago is very rapid.

Those Dangerous "Milwaukee Socialists"

Their Natures Seem Peaceful Enough, Judging by Their Program

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal Examiner

A majority of the voters of Milwaukee—a well-behaved, prosperous and intelligent city—have put the Socialist party in charge of city affairs.

That is to say, Victor L. Berger, head of the Socialist party in Milwaukee, and by far the most conspicuous and able of the Socialist party in the United States, has been put in charge of the city administration by the election of the ticket named by him or with his approval.

Mr. Berger himself is elected Alderman-at-large.

It is rather interesting to find some of the most conservative business men of Milwaukee expressing perfect satisfaction with the result of this election.

Before the election, many of the biggest Milwaukee business men—including at least two of the greatest brewers—had expressed themselves privately in admiration of Mr. Berger and his character and purposes.

Now dozens of such men express their confidence in the Socialist administration that has been elected—even while expressing some fear as to things that "Socialism may lead to."

Mr. Berger has announced the policy of the Socialists just elected, and we are bound to say that in his program there's very little that smells of gunpowder, or a riot, or any kind of disturbance.

Mr. Berger demands public ownership of public utilities. And he advises that such ownership be brought about by the ballot through the Legislature. Nothing very anarchistic about that!

Mr. Berger considers the contract system as bad. He says it gives to contractors what ought to go to workmen and encourages corruption—a good deal of common sense in that.

Mr. Berger thinks that poor people ought to get the benefit of cheap ice, and that a city on the side of a lake that is clogged with ice all Winter MIGHT WELL BUILD A MUNICIPAL ICE HOUSE AND PUT SOME OF THE ICE AWAY FOR SUMMER USE!

Berger thinks that education is highly important, that the public schools stand first among the creators of better conditions in the future.

Berger thinks that corporations should bear their fair share of taxes. He doesn't talk of punitive taxes, or confiscatory taxes, just FAIR TAXES. WHY NOT?

Berger thinks the city should pay more attention to public health and less to private graft and profit. He thinks that the city at its own expense should fight epidemics of eye disease. He believes that free doctors for school children would be a combination of humanity and real economy. Boston is trying that. Why not Milwaukee?

Berger believes that rookeries, vile tenements that breed disease, should be torn down, and the disease germs wiped out. THAT'S COMMON SENSE.

Berger thinks that the city ought to give some legal protection to citizens too poor or too ignorant to defend themselves against injustice. He believes that the law and the courts ought to be not mere agencies for producing lawyers' fees, but havens of refuge, where the poor would be protected.

He points out what is absolutely the fact, that a poor man without money in a law court to-day is a ridiculous, pitiable object.

It wouldn't be very bad if the poor could have justice cheap or for nothing, would it?

Incidentally, Berger and his friends promise a sane, cautious, conservative administration. And the men of Milwaukee that have accumulated millions show no signs of fear.

An especially good sign—David S. Rose, who has been Mayor of Milwaukee for years while Milwaukee has been reeking with corruption, declined to be present when the new Mayor went into office! Very hopeful for the new Mayor, indeed!

This newspaper is more than ready to "view with alarm" any wild and savage uprisings and revolutions. But, frankly, this particular affair in Milwaukee seems on the whole to be about as mild, digestive and wholesome as pure Milwaukee beer.

The End of a Political Era

The announcement of the intended retirement from the Senate of Nelson W. Aldrich and Eugene Hale punctuates a political period.

Aldrich is master of the Rhode Island Legislature and could unquestionably have another term—if he dared. Hale is taking fate by the forelock and making friends with his luck.

Allison and Platt of Connecticut are dead. Spooner is shelved. It is time for Aldrich and Hale to go. They will do well to go with decorum and a show of freedom—rather than be hustled off the stage.

Aldrich is in his seventieth year and Hale in his seventy-fifth. They have served their Plutus King for thirty years in the United States Senate. Their day is spent.

For two generations the political party whose battles they have fought—in the front rank—has been the party of special interests. They have kept their places by the organized power of privilege—in spite of the people.

Of Aldrich especially it is strikingly true that there is no popular constituency in the country that believes in him. His open advocacy of any measure is sufficient to discredit it to the mass of men.

Thus it is strictly and exactly true that he has held his power in defiance of the public.

The era that is coming to an end is the era in which such things could be. The Aldrich influence is being swept away in the surge of a political revolution—whose end is the revival of free government.

For more than a generation the Senate has been constituted of an elaborate system of parliamentary pitfalls, in which all measures devised for the restraint of monopoly have been swallowed up.

It is said, and popularly believed, that Senator Aldrich is an able man. He is an astute man—the shrewdest parliamentary manager extant in this country.

He is said to know all about the tariff question. The tariff question that Aldrich knows all about is the question how much in each particular schedule the American people will stand. His education on this subject is now complete—for he has passed the limit.

Aldrich is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and the projector of great schemes in monetary reform. His ideas of finances have been derived from the group of successful speculators with whom he associates. From the point of view of a scientific national economy they are flatly puerile.

In the retirement of Senator Aldrich the administration is dowered with a sudden good fortune.

Mr. Taft can now detach himself from the millstone that was sucking him down into the sludge with all his hopes.

The President can set his compass afresh—by the glowing stars of a great and chastening experience.

That's What They All Say

By TAD

Mark Twain Is Dead

MARK TWAIN IS DEAD. It would be hard to frame four other words that could carry a message of personal bereavement to so many Americans.

He was easily the chief of our writers, by the only valid test. He could touch the emotional centre of more lives than any other.

He was curiously and intimately American. No other author has such a tang of the soil—such a flavor of the average national mind.

Europeans who complain that we denied Walt Whitman, misunderstood Emerson and have admired only those who write in old world fashions should be satisfied at least with Mark Twain, and with our unwavering taste for him.

He was our very own, and we gathered him to our hearts.

In ages to come, if historians and archaeologists would know the thoughts, the temper, the characteristic psychology of the American of the latter half of the nineteenth century, he will need only to read "Innocents Abroad," "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn."

Mr. Clemens's books were the transcript of his life. And that life was the kind of life that the average American man of his time has believed in and admired.

He was the man that rose from the ranks without envy or condescension.

The man that hated dogmas and philosophies and loved a flash of intellectual light.

He was the man that cared much to get rich, yet would sweat blood to pay his debts.

The man of boundless optimism, who has never troubled to understand the great tragedies of nations.

The deepening sense of the twentieth century—with its feeling that there are social problems that cannot be resolved by pleasantries—has somehow left our dear prophet, with all his delicate and tender ironies and his merry quips, a little in the rear.

Mark Twain was never fortunate in his polemics. He was not effective as the champion of a cause. What he wrote of the Congo was hardly more creditable or convincing than his crusade against Mrs. Eddy.

He had no natural acerbity, and consequently no real talent for satire.

His genius was full of bravery and brightness and the joy of life.

And in the strength of his serene and laughing spirit generations of Americans will go forth to do deeds that he himself could never have conceived.

Guide to the Professions

By WEX JONES

YOUNG MAN, MODEL—This is a profession that is seldom overcrowded, as many of the model young men are being constantly found out, and thereby losing their places in its ranks. It is an exacting profession, and offers but little in the way of rewards. However, any of our readers wishing to take it up will, as we have said, find entrance to it without any difficulty to speak of.

CYNOSURE—There are so many ways to become a cynosure that it is impossible to state all of them here. You may become anything from an operatic star to a militant ex-president. This profession is really nothing but a side line in most instances, although it plays an important part in the two we have mentioned above.

PHILANTHROPIST—This is quite a popular profession in the United States, but is seldom entered upon before middle age. The reason for this is that a large amount of money is necessary to obtain popular distinction in the philanthropic line, and this money must usually be acquired by means which are diametrically opposed to anything philanthropic. So perhaps the best way for the young student who desires to become a philanthropist is to begin skinning his fellow men as quickly and as thoroughly as possible.

PIE-EATER—To most boys this profession comes naturally, but in few instances is it carried beyond adolescence.

To keep up its practice it is necessary for an adult to have simple tastes, good health and a suitable girth. With these qualifications one may remain an active practitioner to the most advanced age.
